

Police to charge $30 to get fingerprints removed from files

Getting your fingerprints removed from Halton police files is now going to cost you $30. The new fee will be charged to anyone who has been granted an absolute or conditional discharge and asks the police to destroy their fingerprint file. The Halton police force averages about 120 such requests a year.

CORRECTIVE NOTICE BY GOODYEAR CANADA INC.

The Director of Investigation and Research (Competition Bureau, Industry Canada) has informed us that savings claims published by Goodyear from January to May 1994 in various newspapers across Canada for the promotion of some of its replacement passenger tires have raised questions under the misleading advertising sections 52(1)(a) and 52(1)(d) of the Competition Act.

The advertisements contained savings claims such as: "25% off"; "four tires for the price of three"; "the second at half price" which were not based on the ordinary selling prices of these tires in all cases.

Goodyear has resolved this situation by ensuring that all current and future savings claims published by Goodyear are based on the regular price at which the product is sold in the relevant market area. We have also established an internal multi-tier advertising review system to support this commitment.

Judge orders hydro talks to resume

Power Workers' Union representative David Shier. "The only limit is time and we still have a chance to hold them up."

Power Worker's Union legal council Don Eady said it was rare to get a judge to agree to a delay on the picket line.

"Case law is changing. There is some delay required for proper communication and for public safety. We don't want people trying to run the picket line," Mr. Eady said.

Mr. Eady was also pleased with the court order requiring mediation in the dispute to recommence. He said he will use the courts to enforce the order if necessary. Milton-Hydro general manager Don Thorne agreed mediation would be set up as soon as possible. A provincial mediator must be found who is satisfactory to both sides in the dispute.

Mr. Thorne was not particularly pleased with the court order, saying only, "It's better than what we have now."

Mr. Shier said arguments in an unfair labour practice suit brought by the union against Milton Hydro will be heard Tuesday, Aug. 27. In that suit the union is seeking a settlement of the lockout and full back wages for its 23 members. If the suit is successful Milton Hydro could be ordered to pay out as much as $250,000.

The lockout of employees by Milton Hydro began on June 14 and is now in its ninth week.

Board members are chosen for new long-term health care group

An organization responsible for providing long-term health care is a big step closer to fruition.

It comes with the formation of a new Community Care Access Centre (CCAC) in Halton, and with the naming of its board of directors.

Board members are volunteers responsible for the CCAC — including the staff and resources of current home care and placement coordination programs.

Consumers will have access to all long-term care services through the CCACs, which will purchase services from community providers.

Community-based, long-term care is the fastest growing sector of the health care system, with the government putting $170 million into such services as nursing, homemaking, therapies, meal programs and personal and attendant care.

"The board members will be instrumental in establishing a better co-ordinated and more accessible system of community-based, long-term care services," said Burlington MPP Cam Jackson in making the announcement. "These improvements will contribute greatly to the care and wellbeing of many people in this area."

Candidates were sought through newspaper ads and public meetings, and selection panels of community members reviewed the applications.

Milton area members of the board are Wendy Ryan-Martin and Helen Ferguson.
