Interior Design Computers Take The Risk Out of Home Decorating

Decorimage Changes The Way We Shop

When shoppers turn their attention to the challenges of home decorating this spring, they will be in for a pleasant surprise.

More than a year ago, a leading carpet manufacturer introduced new technology that takes the guesswork out of interior design and enables customers to decorate with confidence.

And the best news is that it's free.

Now available through select Peerless Carpet Center retailers across the United States, Decorimage is a unique computerized-home decorating system that allows customers to try before they buy. Developed by Peerless Carpet Corporation, the innovative computer system is the first of its kind for the floor covering industry and a persuasive reminder of leading-edge technology.

Try Before You Buy

You get to see what your room will look like before you make your purchase," said Tom Mathis, Peerless Carpet Center Manager. "Let's face it, carpeting can be a significant investment and no one wants to make the wrong choice. Decorimage eliminates all the guesswork for free. It's perfect for people who are afraid to make an expensive mistake."

Decorimage works by starting with a room setting just like your own. By experimenting with colors, shoppers can then design the room of their choice. At the click of a button, the color of the walls and furniture change to exactly the color you want. Then you choose from Peerless' entire range of carpet colors and textures to find the one that matches the room of your dreams. And it's all done right before your eyes. Mathis calls Decorimage "an ideal visualizer."

The beauty of the system is that it allows shoppers to decorate with confidence. You no longer have to fear living with that expensive mistake.

What looked great in that magazine shot may not look as good in your home. Room dimensions, lighting and furniture styles all have an impact on how certain colors and textures will look. With Decorimage, you don't have to imagine what the room of your dreams will look like. You can see it before your eyes. And if you don't like it, change it until you do.

Representative Room Settings

The remarkable system holds dozens of room styles ranging from country to contemporary, traditional to eclectic. With more than 80 room scenes to choose from, shoppers will always find something representative on the screen. For comparative purposes, Decorimage's split screen function allows users to view four room scenes at once.

Though similar systems have been designed for use in the paint industry, the Decorimage program offers a number of critical advantages. One significant difference is the ability of Decorimage to adjust not only colors, but also textures and patterns.

After a carpet selection has been made, Decorimage offers a printed report which customers may keep as a written record of paint and carpet color choices. Choices are also stored in memory and can be recalled for up to a month. This allows customers to make their decisions and confirm them later with a spouse or partner.

Bob George, Vice President of Marketing for Peerless, says, "Decorimage will change the way people decorate their homes. We're offering hands-on access to professional home decorating tools with little risk to the customer." George notes Decorimage is so easy to use it practically runs itself. "The system also happens to be a lot of fun," George adds.

Custom Decorate Your Home

One more unique Decorimage feature is the custom decorating option. For a small fee, Peerless will scan actual photographs of your own room scenes into the computer. Once they are added to the Decorimage program, you will be able to custom decorate your own room.

The addition of Decorimage means customers can comfortably make difficult decisions right in the store. Once color and texture are chosen, the Decorimage program will indicate all the features and benefits of the selected floor covering product. Though sales experts still recommend customers take carpet samples home for viewing in their own surroundings and under their own conditions, Decorimage effectively takes the guesswork out of buying carpet.

Decorimage is available only through select Peerless Carpet Centers. For more information on Decorimage and your nearest Peerless Carpet Center retailer, or to receive the Consumer's Guide to Carpet booklet, call 1 800 845 4252.
