Tea, anyone?

Historical interpreter Gene Soo was at Crawford Lake Conservation Area recently demonstrating how to make hemlock tea as part of the Indian Summer Festival.

Court looks at deal paper trail

price per unit was only $41,000.

"He (Mr. Sood) said this is what the office does," Mr. Toor testified.

Mr. Toor said he expected to earn commission from the deal and Mr. Sood planned to sell Rundle Park Village and take a portion of the profits for finding the property and arranging the flip.

However, a number of investors, including Mr. Cheema, have testified that Mr. Sood, Mr. Toor and Mr. Hans planned to flip the property for a million dollars profit and divide that among themselves.

Mr. Toor said Mr. Cheema learned that the Edmonton complex had sold for $7.1 million in 1989, not $8 million as investors had been told by promoters.

According to previous testimony, Mr. Cheema was given some extra shares in the property in what was described as "hush money."

Mr. Hans was originally charged with conspiracy to commit fraud in connection with Rundle Park Village, but the charges were dropped after the wealthy wrestling star made a statement to police offering an explanation of his role in the deal.

The Crown attorney refused to elaborate, fearing the evidence would jeopardize a future case.

Mr. Toor was expected to continue his testimony in the defence's case yesterday.

Arguments drag on as jury still waiting

An apologetic judge sent home a jury once again Wednesday as legal issues continue to be hammered out. "There's no work for you again today," Justice Robert Zelinski told the seven-woman and five-man jury in the Fred Sheppard murder trial.

Jurors, who have been excused on several occasions to allow for legal arguments, were told to call in after 3 p.m. Tuesday to see if they would be required to attend court Wednesday. Keith Madeley, 22, stands trial in connection with the death of 77-year-old Fred Sheppard, who lived alone on Steeles Avenue. His body was found by family members March 7, 1995 in the outhouse behind his Niagara Escarpment home.
