Some councillors wonder if approved plans in jeopardy

• from REGION on page 5 based on the information that results.

Milton councillor Colin Best called for a sub-committee of health and social services to shepherd the specific details.

The committee direction sailed through council with Mr. Dennison taking a more conciliatory approach.

"The only thing they changed was to look at the long-term costs," he said. "I don't have a problem with that. That's good financial management."

Mr. Dennison called the study "a strictly internal investigation" and said his position that Martin House should be maintained and enlarged is still the council direction. He agreed the study process provides Halton with the advantage of waiting a few months to see if the provincial government's position on funding long-term-care facilities will change.

Mr. Dennison said the first priority is to keep the facilities at Allendale together. Any option to privatize could be considered at a later date, he said. Based on changes in government legislation, Mr. Dennison suggested that in 10 years Allendale could be a private facility or could be controlled by the provincial government.

School gets bumped down on board's priority list from TRUSTEES on page 1 made on the heels of a motion by James Sherlock to make West Oak Trails number one; Millbrook (which was number three) number two and Holy Rosary number three and leave the rest of the list as is. That motion passed, with an amendment to move number 11 on the list to number seven.

"We're ecstatic," said Ms David after the vote. "The Burlington trustees were not focused on the issue. The ministry is looking at new growth areas in terms of funding."

She suggested, however, that the whole exercise would be for naught if the board ended up with no new funding for the next school year.

But, she added, "We wanted a delay for one year, until we know what the ministry is doing. If the board knows it will be getting funding, it will do bridge financing — our school could be finished in the fall of 1998."
