Vows fight

The union president representing Sheridan's College's 400 teachers has vowed he will devote all his energies in the next four months to seeing that as many Tories as possible are defeated in the next provincial election.

"We're targeting the ridings where the Conservatives won by only a small margin," said Ron Martin, president of the Ontario Public Service Employees Union Local 244.

Longtime Milton Fall Fair worker and supporter Ross Segsworth (centre) received an Agricultural Service Diploma at Halton Agricultural Society's annual dinner recently. Fair Board President Jim McPhail (left) and last year's recipient Albert Hunter (right) made the presentation. Mr. Segsworth has exhibited and worked at the fair for many years, especially in the Holstein section.

The Milton District Hospital Expansion Fund was presented with another $542 from Milton District High School student Janine Chung on behalf of local students who attended a "Battle of the Bands" fundraising event earlier this year. The cheque was presented to morley Richardson, a member of the Hospital Foundation recently.

Swords are purchased

Some members of the Halton Regional Police Force are sporting new sidearms—swords.

The swords, however, are not a new addition to a policeman's weaponry. They are commemorative limited edition swords which were purchased by members of the regional police force as personal mementos.

The limited edition swords were manufactured by the world renowned British-based Wilkinson Sword Company. At a cost of $315 each, the swords were purchased by 65 members of the Halton Regional Police.

Recently, Halton Police Chief James Harding presented the swords to their proud new owners at the Halton Police Headquarters in Oakville.

The commemorative swords which took 18 months to complete (from the inception of the idea to the presentation), are inscribed with a design showing the significance of the Halton Regional Police Force.

A committee was appointed by the police force to develop a design for the blade of the sword.

The committee came up with a design which depicts the municipal crests of Acton, Burlington, Georgetown, Milton and Oakville. Harding said these crests signify the incorporation of those areas into the Halton Regional Police Force.

The Coat of Arms of the province of Ontario and the Coat of Arms of the Dominion of Canada are also part of the design, since the Halton force is within Ontario, Canada.

"The sword signifies the pride which we have in the Halton Regional Police Force," said Chief Harding.

Bantams' win string...

Poulton opened the scoring halfway through the first period with assist going to Mark Swales and Mifsud.

ReMax had numerous opportunities to add to their lead, but it was Georgetown who fired the equalizer with 3:47 left in the second period. Just over a minute later Mike Brooks put his squad ahead again with assists to Penman and Closs. With 13 seconds left in the period Georgetown tied the game.

The third period saw a lot of action in front of both nets with no results until Andrew Champagne made a rink-length rusk making no mistake on the tie breaker. Closs added the bonus point in a three-man effort with assist to Penman and Champagne.

Hard work from forwards Phil Pumphrey and Tim Holly, plus good defensive efforts from Brown, Champagne and especially Nick Van Zutphen and Woods who helped foil a two-man power play, were key in the win. But the mainstay was the quick glove of goalie Chris Newell in helping Milton in its 4-2 victory.
