Krantz blasts policy of setting programs

'Big Brother' (alias the provincial government) better pay up if it wants Halton Region to institute new public health programs, says Milton Mayor Gord Krantz.

Mr. Krantz was responding to Oakville councillor Jackie Cutmore's question on whether the region is in a "thou shalt do" position with the provincial government for hiring a dental hygienist.

Mrs. Cutmore and Mr. Krantz were annoyed that the Ontario Ministry of Health is requiring the region to start new programs and providing partial funding for them.

"We should tell Big Brother 'thou shalt pay, too,'" said Mr. Krantz at regional health and social services committee meeting.

Mr. Krantz said the region often gets into such programs at the urging or insistence of the province, which initially pays 75 per cent of the costs for running the program, but eventually places the entire burden on Halton.

Mrs. Cutmore asked regional staff to clarify the ministry's stand on its "Core Programs."

She said she wanted to know if the programs requiring regions to have a dental hygienist among other things is an order or just a recommendation.

Earlier, Graham Pollett, Halton's new medical officer of health, told the committee that Halton is considered to be in violation of the provincial regulation right now by not having a dental hygienist on staff.

Dr. Sam Green, director of the dental division of the health department, said senior staff in the department are completely frustrated because the ministry is always "yelling at us."

"I get the one-two from the ministry. They ask me, 'Aren't you ashamed (that this or that program isn't set up in Halton)?"

But Dr. Green said if regional council says the health department cannot have this program, "I can live with that."

The recommendation for a dental hygienist came from a health department review of the community dentistry program.

The hygienist and program would cost about $28,000 to have in place next year.

New Year's ring-in

A special New Year's Eve gathering is planned for Milton this year to mark the conclusion of Bicentennial Year.

Though it will likely be the last such gathering at the Main St. Town Hall, Milton Mayor Gord Krantz said he hopes the traditional bell-ringing ceremony will continue for years to come at the historic site.

The special hour-long program will commence at 11.30 p.m. with musical entertainment featuring "old time" songs, cakes and cookies and hot cider and presentations from the mayor, and others.

Ernie Buchner, of the Milton Heritage Committee, will present town officials with a time capsule commemorating the Bicentennial of Ontario and the Town of Milton for installation in either the walls of the old town hall or the new Town Hall.

The evening events are being co-ordinated by the Milton Heritage Committee and the Milton Kinsmen.

Milton councillors presented with the program agreed to provide a grant of $1,200 to support the year-end project.
