

Who Does It

Crawford Lake gets nod

at the region
with JIM ROBINSON

Purchase of service agreements between the region and a number of day care centres has been deferred. Among the centres is Wee Care Daycare of Milton.

The decision concerning funding will be discussed by the Health and Social Services Committee.

What the region refers to as the "total global 1984 day-care budget proposal and financial impact" is holding up final fiscal decisions on 1984 funding.

Druggist Approved

Milton's Easley's Guardian Drugs has been approved as the region outlet to dispense tuberculin control drugs.

The tuberculosis drugs are provided free to Halton patients through subsidies. The Ministry of Health (provincial) contributes 75 per cent while the other 25 per cent subsidy is picked up by Halton Region.

Nurses on Hold

Region council has deferred a recommendation to add three community health nurses to the home-care visit program. The decision is being held pending final approval of budget recommendations.

The cost of the three nurses is pegged at $89,050, but it is hoped this would have "no" effect of regional taxpayers.

Bike-A-Thon Passes

A bike-a-thon to raise money supporting restoration work at Crawford Lake can use any regional roads it wants.

Council approved a request that roads in-and-around Crawford Lake be used for the bike-a-thon, plus a few extras.

Public works employees will be advised to supply barricades and carry out installation of warning signs where required with no charge to the organizers "in keeping with the region's support for the Crawford Lake Restoration Project," from the report.

Conservatists

Milton council members have been appointed to posts on conservation authorities within the town's boundaries.

Mayor Gord Krantz and councillor Brian Penman will sit as members of the Halton Regional Conservation Authority.

In The Club

Halton is once again a member of the Association of Municipalities of Ontario. Council voted to send in its annual membership dues last week. Cost of membership for 1984 is $3,060.75.

Waste Not

What to do with waste when money can be made from it is going to cost ratepayers $6,000.

The regional treasurer will pay a contract person not more than $6,000 to "allow for day-to-day financial analysis work required on the preliminary feasibility study for the energy from waste project."
