Get active with family

To help celebrate Ontario's bicentennial year, the Secretariat for Social Development has recognized the month of May as Family Unity Month.

The Secretariat's objectives are to reaffirm family commitments, strengthen family ties and rediscover each other.

Statistics Canada defines a family as a husband or wife, married or common law, with or without children, who have never married, regardless of age, living in the same dwelling. A second definition is a single parent of any marital status, living with one or more children who has never married, regardless of age.

Contrary to popular belief, the family is very much alive in Ontario and Canada. Results compiled from a 1981 Stats Canada nation-wide census show some interesting facts:

In Ontario, 87 per cent of the population still live in a family situation.

Only 40 per cent of Canadian marriages end in divorce, while 60 per cent do not.

Seventy-five per cent of all persons who divorce, eventually remarry, suggesting that people still value and believe in marriage and in establishing families.

In order to keep these trends continuing and to promote the family unity theme, Secretariat for Social Development is urging all families to spend time together and participate in some family activities, during the month.

To assist you in getting started, here are some suggestions for some good old family fun, have a Family Feud Contest, create a Family Album Scrapbook, plant a family tree, trace your Family Coat of Arms, or invent one, make a time capsule; stage a Family Olympics competition; have a Family Street Dance; have a Family Reunion; create your own Family Trivial Pursuit game complete with questions based on your family members. (i.e. Mom's favourite song? What was Dad's favourite car? What was Grandma's maiden name?)

Use your own imagination to plan an activity that all members of the family can get involved in.
