Lunch shows help appreciated

They deal out hotdogs, chaperone on school trips, assist in libraries and classrooms, man telephones and supervise playgrounds.

Their numbers have grown steadily over the past 10 years and according to at least one local elementary school principal they are "fantastic."

Parent volunteers, who now appear to be permanent components of the school system, received recognition for their contributions at several local schools recently. Percy W. Merry School was one of the area facilities to show just how much volunteers mean to teachers and students.

Staff treated volunteers to a lunch at the school recently, an event which attracted many of the school's 55 adult helpers. Those adults, parents and grandparents mostly, perform a total of 88 jobs.

School principal Jim Stanley is amazed by the number of volunteers at his relatively small school which has a student population of 143, representing 90 families.

"There are schools three or four times as big as this one without this number of volunteers," explained Mr. Stanley.

"Without them our programs would be so limited," he added.

Advantages provided by this group are felt not only in programs but in terms of school spirit as well.

"When children see their parents here they become more enthusiastic. They know parents support the school and that makes for a good positive attitude," he said.

While teaching staff looked after the food for the luncheon, the Grade 1 and 2 students of Heather Anderson's class took care of the decorating. The children made special placemats complete with thank you messages to the volunteers and tissue paper flower arrangements for the tables set up in the gymnasium.

A New England village
Impressive gates will mark the entrance to two lushly-landscaped streets. Beautifully-detailed townhomes curve with the line of the roadway, creating an atmosphere that is interesting, eclectic, carrying the warmth and character of a New England village.

Award-winning builder and architect
Individual homes have been designed with attention to detail by an award-winning builder and architect. Roofs are peaked; doors are framed by curved entranceways; brickwork shows care in soft tones and detailed patterns. Double garages have been kept to the rear of homes, following the old tradition of neatly-lined streetscapes. Spacious living rooms open onto equally-spacious terraces, providing the perfect space for casual, lakeside living.
