

Milton born and bred horse part of Obama inauguration

Local Arabian horse Benny was one of the horses in a drill team that participated in United States' president Barack Obama's inauguration in Washington last week.

The most handsome horse in the 2013 Presidential Inaugural Parade on Monday came from Milton — at least that's what his Campbellville breeder believes.

Allan Ehrlick, owner of Milestone Farms, is the breeder of Benny, one of the horses that forms part of the Michigan Multi-Jurisdictional Mounted Police Drill Team and Color Guard, which participated in the inauguration.

Owned by Nina Kowalski, Benny is an Arabian horse, born at Ehrlick's Campbellville farm where it lived for several years before being purchased by Kowalski.

It's because he's an Arabian that Ehrlick believes he stands out as "the prettiest one in the parade," he said, adding Benny's formal name, Milestone Why Be Formal, has become quite appropriate. "He's a handsome boy."

"It's a great tribute to the versatility of the Arabian," said Ehrlick, who rode at the 1968 Olympics. "We've had tremendous success in the show ring, but this is the second (Arabian) who's done something out of the ordinary." Benny's half-brother and mother still reside at Milestone Farms.

The well-known horseman planned to watch coverage of the event, which was expected to draw enormous crowds.

Two mounted unit horses from the Toronto Police Service joined the Michigan drill team among 43 units from across the U.S. selected to take part, from some 2,800 applicants.
