

Lots of support for cellphone tower expressed on online public forum area or not.

Meanwhile on a Hawthorne Villager online discussion forum (www.hawthornevillager.com/phpbb/), a number of residents expressed their support of the latest plans to build a cellphone tower. They said there's a dire need for more reliable cellphone service, especially since the reception strength is weak in the area.

Miltonian Kristen Jaques, who was among the 2,000 opposing the cell tower at the church near her home, is all for the new tower being built.

She said the Thompson and Louis St. Laurent location is a better fit than the one at New Life Church, which is still up in the air on whether it will be built.

"It's not near our homes, not near our schools and daycares and my main concern was the potential health risks and long-term affects (a tower would have on our children)," she said. "I feel, we as a group, feel it's a better site safety-wise for children."

She's hoping the cellphone service carriers that are pushing to have a tower set up on the church property will team up with Rogers to locate at the newer site.

If not, she said she would move out of the area because she's "not willing to risk my children's health."

"They don't know the long-term effects to tower exposure," said Jaques. "There has been children's studies done in other countries where putting a tower in (close to residential homes) is not an option."

Town of Milton Planner Angela Janzen said that while she can't say for certain the tower being proposed at New Life Church will not be built, Industry Canada has asked Bell and other carriers to work together to find an alternative location.

She believes the Thompson and Louis St. Laurent site is such a location.

Janzen added the Town's letter to Industry Canada stipulates it is in support of the tower being erected with the understanding that the facility will be designed to accommodate two additional carriers and that both Rogers and Bell will be entering a joint build or co-location agreement in relation to the tower.
