Couldn't take pain anymore: victim

"I couldn't stand the pain anymore. It was nothing like I've ever experienced in my life." The owner of the dog rushed to the scene and pulled the dog off Kolankiewicz, who was bleeding and distraught. He took the two women to Milton District Hospital where he stayed with them for four hours, while Kolankiewicz was treated.

Choma added a witness driving by the incident stopped to offer assistance as well. Kolankiewicz wants the dog euthanized. "She is still very scared to leave the house and avoids any physical activity," said Choma. "She is constantly taking medications since the day it happened. Three times a week, we go for treatment where she gets her bandages changed and wounds checked."
