

Bird watching takes flight at Mountsberg

Mountsberg Conservation Area held a Migratory Bird Weekend to celebrate Migratory Bird Day (Saturday). Clockwise from top left, Mountsberg resource interpreter Erica Lagios holds up an Osprey foot, showing its unique talon placement designed for catching fish. A robin — one of the more familiar migratory birds — rests in a tree. Swallowville provides numerous nests for cliff swallows. Lagios leads a guided tour looking for birds through her binoculars. A tree swallow flies close to the surface of the lake, looking for insects. Graham Paine / Canadian Champion (Follow on Twitter @halton_photog)
