

Paramedics presented certificates

3 Kapuvari held her infant son as she thanked paramedics for helping her through her delivery at home when it became abundantly clear she wasn't going to make it to the hospital.

Master of ceremonies Kevin Frankish, CityTV's Breakfast Television co-host, joined Regional Chair Gary Carr and Paramedic Services Chief Greg Sage to award recipients with certificates in recognition of their efforts to save lives and improve the health and wellness of Halton residents.

"We are here to recognize our paramedics, partners, and citizen bystanders for their contributions," said Carr. "But the survivors are the ones who make the event particularly special. They remind the award recipients, staff, regional council, and all of us why we put so much effort into our community safety measures."

Halton Region's 190 paramedics responded to more than 50,000 calls in 2012.
