Oakville and Milton Humane Society registered veterinary technicians Christine Crocker (left) and Holly Crone examine a snowy owl found on a Milton sidewalk.

Injured snowy owl getting care

A snowy owl that was found on a Milton sidewalk unable to fly is being cared for by the Owl Foundation. -

The Oakville and Milton Humane Society (OMHS) received a phone call from a resident about the incident January 3.

OMHS officers picked up the bird and confirmed it was a snowy owl. They took it back to the Oakville shelter to examine it and decide what treatment would be considered.

"There have been a higher than normal number of snowy owls in our area this winter," said Christine Crocker, OMHS registered veterinary technician. "It is a juvenile bird, so it is difficult to determine what sex it is. We transferred it to The Owl Foundation for further assess-
