

Halton asks residents to power down for Earth Hour

Halton Region joins communities around the world by participating in Earth Hour on Saturday from 8:30-9:30 p.m.

Earth Hour is a worldwide grass-roots movement organized by the World Wildlife Fund (WWF) in an effort to raise awareness about the importance of taking action to fight climate change.

This is the seventh consecutive year Halton

Region has participated. The Region encourages households and businesses to participate by turning off all non-essential lights and appliances for one hour at 8:30 p.m. on March 29.

Halton Region will be turning off all non-essential lights and electrical equipment at Regional facilities that don't compromise public safety or interfere with essential services for one hour in support of the global initiative, according to a media release.

"In the 2011-2014 Citizens' Priorities Action Plan residents identified corporate sustainability as a priority area for Halton Region," said Halton Regional Chair Gary Carr.

"By participating in events like Earth Hour and implementing a number of corporate sustainability initiatives, Halton Region is demonstrating our commitment to making sustainable choices to meet the needs of the community now and in the future."

Halton school boards have also encouraged community members and staff to switch off all lights and electronic devices for one hour as a reminder to conserve energy and help reduce greenhouse gas emissions throughout the year.
