Wells known for fine applique work, three-dimensional flowers, bouquets

"self," she said. "You're sitting there with your own thoughts.

"It gets tedious," she admitted. "It takes a fair bit of determination to finish a piece."

A member of the Royal City Quilters' Guild, she has won several awards for her quilts locally and is known for her fine applique work and three-dimensional flowers and bouquets.

Her quilts have appeared in the Grand National show in Ontario, the Ontario Juried Quilt Show, the Pacific International Quilt Show in California, the World Quilt Competition in the United States, the Vermont Quilt Show and Quilt Canada.

In 2010, her quilt 'Nancy's Baltimore' won honourable mention at Quilt Canada. It's a quilt that took five years to complete and one of which she's very proud.

On three occasions, she has attended the Elly Sienkiewicz Applique Academy in Williamsburg, Virginia — one of the industry's most renowned quilting conferences, she explained.

There she learned new techniques and became inspired to continue her artistic endeavours in quilting.

As for the future, she sees herself making quilts for her own children and grandchildren, which she's confident will be handed down for generations to come — a rewarding prospect in itself.

Wells' works will be on display until Monday, Mar. 31.
