Bauer to head up Milton Cycling Academy

A cycling icon is set to bring his expertise to Milton. Former Olympian and Tour de France great Steve Bauer has been hired as head coach of the Milton Cycling Academy, which will operate out of the Mattamy National Cycling Centre. The announcement was made Friday by the Town of Milton, Cycling Canada and the Mattamy National Cycling Centre. Bauer will be at the forefront of developing a full program of track cycling, ranging from introductory to more advanced training for participants of all ages. The ultimate goal would be to see aspiring young athletes transition into high performance competition with Cycling Canada. "I'm very keen to lead the direction of the Milton Cycling Academy and I'm excited to have a role in building a foundation for cycling through the programs within the academy," said Bauer. "The opportunity to develop long-lasting synergies for our sport within the community of Milton, the province of Ontario and Canada is in front of us, and the vision of the sport of cycling in Canada is brighter than ever before." As head coach of the academy, Bauer will also work closely with the Town of Milton to ensure that a wide range of grassroots programs are offered, including recreational development opportunities and the establishment of regular racing nights.
