MCP deserves round of applause

Dear Editor:

For the past 28 years, a group of dedicated music-loving volunteers have been sharing their passion for excellence and new experiences in musical entertainment with our community.

They have planned, negotiated, marketed, administered and been the set-up guys for some of the most wonderful concerts imaginable. We have been seduced by the charms and considerable talents of Kerry Stratton. We have enjoyed treasured classics, been swept away on nostalgic journeys, and been introduced to music that challenged and music that showcased the talents of professional musicians.

Anything Goes — at the Milton Centre for the Arts tomorrow (Friday) night — will be the last performance of this season's Milton Concert Presentations (MCP) series and this is the group's last season.

How do we thank the many generous souls who contributed their time, expertise and financial support over the years? We accept that time marches on and ways of doing things change but what has been given is never lost.

We can ensure that MCP's vision to serve the community's need for cultural enrichment, education and entertainment carries on in a new format through supporting performances at the Milton Centre for the Arts. If you want to support the arts in our community, participate... and buy tickets to the performances.

Thanks for the memories MCP!

Blown recyclables quite an eyesore

Dear Editor:

Yesterday (April 14) was such a beautiful day. It felt so good to jump in my car and leave for work with open-toed shoes and no jacket.

By lunch time, the temperature was quite nice and spring was finally in the air. The commute from Milton to Mississauga was light and the drive to work was a breeze.

At 5 p.m., I left my Mississauga office and headed home to my town of Milton. I was excited that I would be able to take a nice walk to end my day. And then, BAMM! It hit me. I turned onto my street and there were recyclables and trash all over the road, park and walkway in my area of Derry Road and Scott Boulevard. I was absolutely enraged by the sight of my street.

It's beyond me why 'blue' bags aren't allowed in order to cut down on the amount of recyclable goods that get tossed around on windy days. Based on the state of my neighbourhood and the glass that I swept up from the street (due to the recycling bins blowing), I'm disgusted that this is the town in which I live.

What if this happens during the Pan Am Games in Milton? Does the town want travellers to see Milton looking like this? Is this a town you're proud of?

I walk a lot in Milton and the blown trash/recyclables aren't my only concern. I'm not sure if you've been out walking lately but there seems to be a lot of stray dogs in Milton. Oh, they aren't strays, it's just the owners not picking up after their dogs.
