Stay in Halton this winter

Halton is home to several beautiful conservation areas, interactive museums and performing arts centres offering plenty of outdoor and indoor activities and events this winter. Whether it's cross-country or downhill skiing, tubing, ice skating, snowshoeing, or taking the family to a local festival, show or exhibit, there are so many reasons to enjoy the winter season in Halton Region. If you prefer to get out of the cold, there are plenty of indoor attractions and activities, from arts and culture to shopping and dining. With so much to experience this winter in Halton, you can have something planned each weekend and holiday. To learn more about what destinations the region has to offer, visit halton.ca/tourism or dial 311.

Board hosting information meeting

The Halton District School Board will hold an information session to assist parents with the transition process for junior and senior kindergarten students with special needs. At Irma Coulson Public School, 625 Sauve St., next Thursday at 7 p.m., the meeting will give parents many details about education. Topics for the information session will include:

- Registration and preparing for the first day of school

- Planning for students with special needs and an opportunity to chat with staff of the Student Services Department
 - Support from the Community Care Access Centre
 - The role of the Special Education Advisory Committee
- For more information, call Mark Zonneveld, superintendent of education, at (905) 335-3663.
