Tonkin continues impressive gymnastics season with Gymnix silver

Quebec is quickly becoming a mighty favourable destination for Alex Tonkin. Just a few weeks after placing fifth in her Elite Canada debut in Trois-Rivières, the 12-year-old Milton gymnast made her presence felt once again in the neighbouring province. In fact that's something of an understatement, given the fact she came within a razor's edge of winning it all at the prestigious Gymnix showcase, held recently in Montreal.

Highlighted by a golden performance on the floor and a personal-best effort on beam, Alexandria fell a scant .033 points shy of all-around National Novice gold — conceding the title by the absolute narrowest of margins to Saskatchewan's Emily Walker.

Kevin Iwasa-Madge admits he still has a lot to learn about Greco Roman wrestling. To say the next few months offer ample motivation to do exactly that would be... well, a staggering understatement. Still dejected after narrowly missing out on national freestyle bronze less than 24 hours earlier, the 25-year-old Milton grappler wasn't feeling particularly positive heading into his first high-stakes Greco Roman competition in St. Catharines. He and his Guelph Wrestling Club coaches had only brought up the idea of seriously taking on Greco Roman a few months ago with hopes of a making a bid for the Pan
