

MILTON TIME CAPSULES

Site secured for automobile dealership

Time Capsules are gems of information extracted from past issues of the Champion and other publications in order to provide a window into Milton's past.

September 1920

W.I. Lott has secured the Milton agency for the Hup-Mobile Motor Cars and has sold one to Elgin Cartwright.

Mr. Hutchinson, of the firm of G.W. Morley & Co., barristers, came to Milton last Monday to take charge of their Halton office as Mr. Pedley is about to return to his Toronto home. Like Mr. Pedley, Mr. Hutchinson is a veteran of the great war.

He served four years at first with the C.E.F., from which he was transferred to the Imperials, the heavy artillery.

October 1920

The finest of weather favored Milton fair yesterday and the attendance was very large, perhaps the largest on record. Cars were parked in all the available space on the grounds and outside on the streets there was a big midway, candy and refreshment booths, a fortune teller, a tooth-puller, cheap jewelry stands and games.

The good music of the Milton band was one of the features of the fair yesterday. The band is up to full strength now, plays music of class. For the first time the boys appeared in their new uniforms of the artillery pattern, neat smart and of extra good material.

The R.W. Long Co., of Toronto, who have bought the whitewear factory, Commercial Street, are making changes in the building, putting in new floors, removing the elevator to the outside and increasing space as much as possible.

They will begin operations within a month. They will spin and dye all wool yarns for the manufacture of sweaters. According to good authority the Milton factory will enlarge greatly and quickly if the necessary help is available.
