Having been opened less than a year, Orange Snail Brewers is already well on its way to distinction.

The Milton craft brewery earned a silver award for its Rattle 'n' Nemo amber ale this past spring at the Ontario Brewing Awards in Toronto.

Now Orange Snail — owned and operated by Damion Orsi and Kevin Greer — have been recruited by Georgetown restaurants Latitude Food & Drink and Uncorked on Main to promote the Georgetown Craft Beer Festival, dubbed Head for the Hills, this Saturday.

Everything about Orange Snail screams Milton. Brew-masters

Kevin and Damion are both Milton residents and use locally-sourced ingredients — ranging from hops to pumpkins.

Its award-winning beer is even named after Rattlesnake Point and Mount Nemo Conservation Areas. Latitude is eager to be in a position to help with the exposure to new breweries such as Orange Snail.

By adding more craft breweries to the upcoming festival, organizers can feature a Craft Beer Menu on-site that highlights beer and food pairings.

Uncorked is no stranger to the craft beer scene, offering seven craft brews and now adding Orange Snail to the mix.

On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday for the next two weeks Uncorked will be featuring breweries from across Ontario, providing sample flights of craft beer and suggested food pairings.

Connecting Orange Snail with restaurants like Latitude and Uncorked marks the beginning of a fruitful relationship, said organizers.

Tickets for Head for the Hills, running from 12 to 6 p.m. at Trafalgar Sports Park (11494 Trafalgar Rd.), are $20 in advance.
