

Staff to consider survey responses

There was a concerted, orchestrated effort to respond to the survey by the groups that are opposed to what we did." Di Lorenzo pointed out that there's been a "fairly drastic shift" in the way residents are obtaining budget information, with the majority now turning to Facebook and Twitter. He suggested staff use the social media platforms to post more financial reports for residents. Town/Regional Councillor Mike Cluett commended the Town's communications team for dispersing quality information to residents through social media. "We're getting the message out a lot quicker to residents. I see it as a good thing," he said. Ward 5 Councillor Arnold Huffman asked if it was the Town's Facebook and Twitter pages that residents were frequenting for budget information, but Leeds told him the survey didn't specify that detail. Town staff will take the survey responses into account as they now start developing the 2017 budget, which will be fully deliberated by council in December.
