ARTS & LIFE

Join the choir

Question: How do you start a new choir season?

Answer: You meet people at the Farmers' Market, tell them about the new season and invite them to join in on the fun.

That's exactly where you'll see the Milton Choristers this Saturday (August 20). Choir members will be in front of Knox Presbyterian Church, 170 Main St. East, from 7 a.m. to 12 (noon).

"We're all feeling excited and enthusiastic because our first rehearsal is on Tuesday, September 6. Not only will we be glad to see our singing friends again, we are always hopeful to see new faces on that day," said Milton Choristers Marketing Director and alto Stephanie Kimmerer.

The group's first major concert of the season takes place on Saturday, December 3 at the Milton Centre for the Arts (1010 Main St. East).

"A Fireside Christmas will include a collection of songs that try to capture the landscape of the Canadian winter," said the choir's Artistic Director Sheena Nykolaiszyn. "They will dovetail beautifully with what our special guest Dave Hadfield will sing. When writing songs, Dave is inspired by the north and wilderness, not to mention space."

The Choristers' second concert will be performed on May 13, 2017, and is called "Canada Sings, Eh? Part DEUX!"

Canadian songs will be sung in Canada's 150th year. Aren't these two good reasons to join the choir in September?

For anyone who would like to attend the September 6 rehearsal, please arrive at 7 p.m. at Knox Presbyterian Church, rear entrance.

Enjoy art in the park

Several Halton artists have been selected for an inaugural art show set to take place under the shadow of the Niagara Escarpment.

Some 34 artists were chosen to showcase and sell their original, diverse works of art for a one-day-only sale on Sunday, Aug. 21, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Country Heritage Park, 8560 Tremaine Rd.

Artists include Milton's Andrea Howson, Amanda Gonsalves, Marie Austen and Nadine Nesbitt, among other Halton artists.

Works include original paintings in oil, acrylic, water-colour, as well as encaustic, fibre arts, glass, jewelry, ceramics, sculpture, pottery, wood, metal, photography/digital, and mixed media.
