RESEARCH AS QUEST: CRIT- ICALLY THINKING ALONG THE JOURNEY

John Caldwell, Co-ordinator Elementary Programs, Greater Victoria School District (B.C.)

Teacher librarians, public librarians and classroom teachers have, in general, accepted the notion that research is inherently good for our students. However, new technology, changing student attitudes and an analysis of the research process has shown us that in order to make research meaningful and exciting for students, we must create opportunities for reflective inquiry and help students develop the skills necessary to ask, as well as answer, critical research questions. How can we develop "communities of thinkers" in our school libraries and classrooms?
