Viola Desmond Won't Be Budged!

Jody Nyasha Warner
Illustrated by
Busha Junaid &
Richard Rudnicki
ISBN:

In 1946 in Nova Scotia, Viola Desmond bought a movie ticket at the Roseland Theatre. After she settled into a seat on the main floor, an usher told her she needed to move to the balcony and was told, "You people have to sit in the upstairs section." She refused to move and was hauled off to jail. Her actions catalyzed the movement against racism in Canada's oldest established black community, ten years before Rosa Parks refused to change seats on the bus. Beautiful illustrations
