several causes, not least amongst which is that contained in Mr. Secretary McCulloch's report, in which we find the following passage: "There are grave doubts whether treaties of this character do not interfere with the legislative powers of Congress, especially with the constitutional power of the House of Representatives to originate revenue bills; and whether such treaties, if they yield anything not justified by general revenue laws, are not in conflict with the spirit of the usual clause contained in most of our commercial treaties, to treat each nation on the same footing as the other, and to favor neither to grant to one nation not conceded to another in respect to commerce and navigation."

The Secretary is evidently arguing a fallacy. It is not so much as to the impolicy of commercial treaties that sways his reasoning, as the foregoing conclusion that something has to be advanced in defense of a very weak position—weak in regard to the objection taken, weak as to the necessity of the objects to be obtained, and weak because of the pressure under which the government is compelled to a narrow and illiberal policy. The agitator behind Mr. McCulloch shields himself when alluding to the "spirit of the usual clause contained in most of our commercial treaties" is indeed a poor defence; for who should be classed amongst the most favored nations but these who grant reciprocal and equal favors? In these days of collecting duty a free-trade treaty is an exceptional compact not an "usual commercial treaty" at all, but one of special character; and such treaties are made with the understanding that they may be altered or annulled by the legislative power of the body which "originates revenue bills." Now, with all deference to so high an authority, would you submit to Mr. McCulloch that the point he raises is a great constitutional question; and, if worth anything as an argument, comes very late in the day, seeing that if the "legislative power" is usurped by treaties of this character the privileges of Congress have been violated at any time during the past ten years. But let us follow and see what the honorable gentleman is driving at. He again observes:—

"It is certain that, in the arrangement of our complex system of revenue through the tariff and internal duties, the treaty has been the cause of no little embarrassment. The subject of the revenue should not be embarrassed by treaty stipulations, but Congress should be left to act upon the subject as it may see fit. Any arrangement between the United States and the Canadian Provinces, that may be considered mutually beneficial, can be as readily perfected and carried out by reciprocal legislation as by any other means. No complaint would arise as to subsequent changes in laws, for each party would be free to act at all times, according to its discretion. All of which plainly says "we must raise revenue, and if you representatives don't like being taxed, do you relieve me from the responsibility of dealing with this awkward subject. Matters can be arranged for trading with our neighbors as readily by legislation as by any other means." This is a very well contrived hole for responsibility to escape through, and as just that amount of democratic sweetening which is likely to make the Secretary's new-born scruples palatable to Congressional voters is intermixed with his line of argumentation, the doctrine of "legislative power" will doubtless obtain.

But while contending for this elastic principle to be applied to commerce Mr. McCulloch has evident misgivings as to its station in legal qualities. He perceives what strong objections must eventually arise against a system of so much uncertainty, where the merchant will never be secure from meddling and injurious legislation. The Secretary thus shows his doubt:—

"However desirable stability may be, an irrepealable revenue law, even in ordinary times, is open to grave objections, and in any extraordinary crisis is likely to be regarded as a source of weakness. The people of the United States cannot consent to be taxed as producers while those outside of our boundaries, exempt from our burdens, should be permitted, by their own action, to have free access to our markets. It is desirable to diminish the temptations now existing for smuggling, and if the course suggested, of mutual reciprocity, is confined to moderate legislation, and to this mode of adjustment we have no doubt Messrs. Galt and Howland are prepared to address themselves, rather than adopt the hostile policy of retaliatory tariffs."

We understand that His Excellency the Governor General will shortly arrive from England. We learn that Hon. Ferguson Blair will discharge the duties of the Hon. Provincial Secretary during his absence on the Colonial Trade Mission. We learn, by telegram from Toronto, yesterday, that Mr. Boomer, the Police Magistrate, died at four o'clock, a.m., and that Mr. Vance had undertaken the duties of the office for the present. Mr. Burns, Vance, and Alex. McNab were understood to be applying for the post.

LOCAL NEWS.

DISCONTENT WITH THE FAIR.—Some gentlemen staying at a respectable boarding-house in Wellington street, are bringing their hostess, before the Police Court, this morning to answer complaints respecting the dietary system to which they have been treated. The more immediate object of the mission upon which the provincial ministers proceed to the United States capital is no doubt to learn upon what terms negotiations for a new commercial intercourse can be based. These necessary preliminaries once settled, such of the obstruction to a right understanding would be removed. It is pretty evident that neither the Detroit Convention nor the meetings of the several Boards of Trade have borne any available fruit. It would not be long, perhaps, to say that they have been entirely useless; for as aiding the solution of the commercial difficulty the contribution from their deliberations has been infinitesimally small. There seems to be very little chance of any actual and direct renewal of the Treaty which will expire in little more than two months. We despair of this from

SPECIAL DESPATCH FROM MONTREAL.

THEMOMETER 28 BELOW ZERO. TWENTY PERCENT ALLOWED TO GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES FOR REMOVAL EXPENSES. MR GALT GOES TO THE STATES. A NEW NAVAL LOCOMOTIVE.

MONTREAL, Jan. 5th, 1866. Weather very cold, 28 degrees below zero, at 4 a.m. At a meeting of the Council yesterday it was resolved to refund the 10 per cent. deducted from the Government employees for removal expenses, and to add another 10 per cent. thereon in aid of the removal; also, to stand all rents incurred at Ottawa by employees by reason of the removal.

MR. MESSRS. CAMPBELL AND GALT left today, the latter gentleman having delayed his departure to the States in order to avoid discussion of Council on points connected with renewal of the treaty. The Executive Council again set today a more general order being present.

PIRE LACROIX, a contractor here, is about to apply for a patent for a water locomotive which it is said will be able to sail at the rate of 10 miles an hour. Experiments were made on his part recently tried in this vicinity. Mr. Futvays is spoken of as successor Mr. Carter as Clerk of the Crown and Peace.

RELIABLE INFORMATION received here states that the Conference held at Lennoxville, N. S., was defeated on the school question, in which the German vote was deeply interested. His opponent, Hebb, can scarcely read much loss.

Several representatives from Quebec district are urging the government to settle the claims of Mr. McGreevy and the other Ottawa citizens of education in Lennoxville, N. S. Mr. McGreevy are among those named.

By special despatch in reference to Stephen the Fenian leader. It is suggested that he has been a spy in the employ of the government and that he has been in the employ of the Fenians. Having been taken however, it was absolutely necessary to keep up appearances by sending him to jail, since he was well known to have been held by the Fenians. When imprisoned all necessary facilities were given him and thus, made what is called his mysterious escape. This is the story of the Fenian leader, and is supported by the fact that the Lord Lieutenant has refused to appoint a commission to inquire into the case of Stephen Fenian, and the fact that the Governor of Richmond, Bridwell, has been dismissed tells somewhat against this theory.

The Times Washington special says the Secretary of the Treasury in reply to the Secretary of the War, says that the Government is desirous of buying cattle in Canada, and that the terms of the Act of Congress prohibiting the import of cattle are very decided and leave nothing to the discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury. He says moreover, that the Government does not apply to cattle transporters from one port of the United States to another via Canada.

Ex-President Millard Filmore and lady will be in the city for a brief stay, intending to spend the winter in Spain. The Times Washington special says there is now deposited in the United States treasury to the credit of the Fenian leader, a sum of $1,000,000. CANADIAN NEWS.

The Quebec Mercury announces that it has completed its sixtieth year, having been started in 1805, by the grandfather of the present proprietor.

The Hamilton Times exposes the falsity of the report that the explosion of the boiler of the ship pumped from the Bothwell, wells being oil. It says that not more than one-tenth or one-twentieth of the stuff brought to the surface was oil.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING.—Monday, a lady while skating on the Bay, was precipitated into the water from the breaking of the ice. Her only chance of escape was to hold on to the railing of a family of whom we hear, not to his credit, that one son is in the Provincial Penitentiary, was it appeared, greatly provoked by this conduct. He emerged from the place with a gun and fired upon the party, wounding one of them, Joseph Rousin, in the knee. The charge consisted of a small shot, but from the proximity of the victim, it hit the same effect as if it had been a ball. While the young man fell to the ground, and his comrades stood aghast at the sight, the latter is said to have prepared to reload his weapon, seeing which the party fled. Rousin, who was the son of Mr. Joseph Rousin, a respectable man, and a ship-carpenter, was 29 King street, at the time of the accident, and was suffering from the loss of blood, and was attended for by Doctors James and Lewis, who applied the tourniquet to stop further bleeding, but this, it is stated, was removed by the young man during his intense agony, and death supervened at 5 o'clock. The latter is said to have been arrested and sent to jail, pending the enquiry of the coroner, which, we understand, will take place to-day.—Quebec Paper.

Accident.—On New Year's Day the Water Police caught a horse and sleigh, the former, and the latter sundry to pieces, near the railway iron bridge. It seems that about midnight on Sunday, the driver arrived with team at the tannery, and was driving a horse of a house which he entered. The horse strayed away towards the railroad where it appears to have been caught by the cow-catcher of the engine, and swept, along with the sleigh, across the bridge. The latter afterwards found to be marked with blood, and the bones of the animal were broken.—Montreal Transcript.

An inkeeper in Anderlecht, on the Rhine, had made a bet that he could drink six quarts of beer in a day. He won his bet, drinking five quarts more than was required. A machinist fell from a scenic bridge at a theatre in Paris and dashed out his brains on the stage. The spectators for some time thought it was the play.

Barium was once travelling on board one of the river steamers, and asked at tea time for beefsteak. The waiter brought the usual shirred mite of broiled beef, certainly not sufficient for more than two mouthfuls. Barium asked the waiter if he had any more, and the waiter, as if he had been scolded, said, "No, sir, I have none more." Barium then returned to the water, saying, "Yes, that's what I mean; bring me some of that."
