The engineer of a train near Newburyport discovered a man standing between the rails one evening last week. The locomotive bell and whistle failing to remove him the engin was reversed but it was two late. The train went over the figure and some distance beyond before it could be arrested. The train men then hastened back for the mangled remains and discovered themselves the victim of a heartless sell. It was a suit of old clothes

"THEASURE TROVE."-The Transcript says: On Saturday morning, between the hours of three and four o'clock, as some of the City Police were patrolling their beat in St. Mary Street, they observed a man with a heavy carpet bag on his shoulder, and suspecting that something was wrong, desired him to stop, No sooner had he heard the command of the police thra he flung away the bag and took to his heels. The portmanteau, on being exammed, was found to contain a miscellaneous collection of articles, amongst which were no fewer than 150 pairs of mitts and 10 pair of boots. Any person having missed such articles of late are requested to call at the Central Police Station and identify them.

THE PATH TO HAPPINESS .- William Wire's letter to his daughter on the "small courttesies of life," contains a passage from which a deal of happiness; might be learned; "The way to make yourself pleasing to others is to show them attention. The whole world like the Miller of Mansfield, who cared for nobody-no, not he, because nobody cared for every one, therefore, see that you care for them, by showing what Sterne so happily calls parade, whose voice is too still to tease, and which manifests themselves by tender and affectionate looks, and little acts of attention, giving others the preference in every little enjoyment of the table, in the field, walking, sitting or standing. LORD CASTLEREAGN AND SIR E. PAKENHAN .-

The following incident occurred in London n 1814. When the war had terminated in the Peninsula, Sir Edward Pakenham, with It is guaranteed to be the Purest and most Powerhis physician, Dr. John Howell, arrived in England, en route to North America, where Sir Edward had been named by the Duke of York, commander-in-chief of the British forces Before the departure of the gallant General he had promised Lord Castlereagh to breakfast with him, and at the same time to introduce his physician to the Minister. After breakfast Lord Castlereagh inquired of the doctor the precise place where the jugular vein was situated. Dr. Howell explained it to the satisfaction of his lordship, stating that it would be a dangerous experiment for any man to take the slightest liberty with that artery, for death would inevitably follow if it were pierced. When the General and his friend were returning to their hotel, the former said, "I am afraid, doctor, you were too explicit about the jugular artery, for I observed Castlereagh to be in a strange mood when you finshed your anotomical lecture." It is needless to state that many years did not clapse before Lord Castlereagh committed suicide by cutting his throat with a penknife. Dr. Howell related this incident to me at Brighton in 1849 .-Gronow's Recollections.

as to the superior excellence of our instru ments-will be sent free to any address The Automatic Organ. In presenting the ACTUMATIC ORGAN, WE boldly announce the greatest triumph in musical instruments of the age. During the past half century, the French and Germans have manufactured reed instruments with double bellows, and two pedals for the feet to operate, but the want of the reversed or Et-HAUSTED BELLOWS, (which is the only bellows used in our instruments,) made it impossible for them to produce the mellow, rich and musical tone for which our instruments are Another objection to this method of blowing was, that both feet being occupied, no opportunity was offered for the management of the swell. Within the past two years, instruments constructed on this European plan of "double blowers," have been manufactured in this centre of the instrument, toact upon the swell, AND OPERATED BY THE KNEE. The inconvenience 1-6-fkw and contortion necessary to effect this object, are disagreeable enough to a gentleman, but to a lady the use of such an appendage is nearly Our AUTOMATIC device obviates this difficulty entirely, the simple act of blowing with more or less force giving the desired increase or decrease in the volume of the tone. The Melodeon and School Organ. For seventeen years the superior excellence of our Melodeons has not been questioned, and for two years past the enormous demand has made it impossible for us to meet our orders promptly. With our increased facilities, we feel warranted in assuring our patrons that their orders will be promptly met, and solicit a continuance of their patronage.
