City and County Official Paper.

OTTAWA. MARCH 29, 1867.

The Hon, Messre. CAMPBELL and Cock-BURN left the city yesterday, for their respective homes. The Hou. Mr. BLAIR is the only Minister now in town.

The Montreal Gazette of yesterday says :-"Many of our readers will be interested t " learn that, by private advices received from "Mr. TACHE, all the Canadian goods for the " Paris Exhibition had arrived in time."

We understand that the Mounted Police force for the "Quinte Gold Mining District, the contemplated formation of which we an nounced yesterday morning, will at first consist of twenty-five men, to be increased or minished according to circumstances. The force is being organised at Belleville by the agent of the Crown Lands Department. headquarters will be at Madoc. new district will comprise the Northern portions of Addington, Hastings, and Peterboro sion of the Delegates from New Brunswick to Ottawa, (Canada?) was to make arrange ments with the Canadians for the importation of building stone from the Maritim Provinces instead of that from Ohio.

Our confrere also concludes that as the London journals had announced that the Hor Mr. HENRY would remain in London to watch the debates on the Loan Bill, and as that gentleman has now returned, therefore the bill must have already passed, though no mention has been made of it by the cable des patches, a circumstance not to be wondered since the cable brought no intelligence of the third reading of the Confederation Bill. The speculations of La Minerve on this subject may probably prove correct.

The citizens of Ottawa have more than once within the past twelve months had their attention forcibly directed to the very inefficient means at hand for the extinction of fires. We may say in fact that if the united such help as the citizens may give, succeed water in general use at fires in this city may be conveniently described as the " man-horse" The Volunteer Monument Committee anand-puncheon" apparatus; and this to the credit of the parties, be it said, is generally worked with energy and zeal, but we need hardly say that in many cases the water so supplied if used for any other purpose than that of confining the fire within a certain limit would be worse than useless-if poured of himself. The petition signed by the jury in small quantities on a dense mass of fire. every experienced fireman knows that it only stimulates the destructive element to greater activity. And this apparatus, though apparently a cheap one, is sometimes not so economical as people would imagine, for though the man and the puncheon generally escape without injury, it trequently happens that the poor horse is either seriously hurt or killed outright, and a bill of damages against the corporation very properly follows as a stely after Sir John A. We have never heard that our firemen failed in doing all that it was possible for men with such appliances as are available for their use; but without the direction of a CHIKY ENGINEER, how can they be expected to work so effectively as they would with fficer at their head? We are almost puza Fire Brigade, without a chief officer command it; it seems like placing an army in the field to oppose a well organised enemy tary tacties any one proposing such a proceeding would be set down at once as a mad man or an imbegile; and we beg of the corporation to consider whether there is an wisdom or prudence, in allowing our Fire Brigade to face their enemy who is always plement of officers to render their action uniform and efficient. We are aware that the members of the cor poration were elected under promises of the thing as " penny wise and pound foolish ' phrase, there is a danger of sometimes " saving at the spigot and losing at the bunghole, and this we think is precisely the position Engineer of the Fire Brigade, as an improvement of great importance and emphatically a "step in the right direction." As to the larger question of a water supply, though immediate action on a great scale may be ou of the question, we think it would not be di ficult, at a small cost to confiderably increase the quantity available for the extinction fires in some portions of the city. We commend these suggestions to the early consideration of our City Fathers.

LINES ON A LADY'S NOSE,

The following lines were suggested from an incident in which a beautiful girl exhibited that eccentric caprice which excites so much amuse. ment when proceeding from a witty and charming woman. The lady in this instance offered to give a beautiful specimen of her work to the person who should write the best verses upon " her nose." We need scarcely add that the following was the

" prize poem" in this novel competition : Let me sing of that feature of Miss Isabelle, Which serves her so aptly to sneeze, and to smell, Altho' it can't be called Roman, or Greek, It stands sentinel over a mouth that can speak, With such wit, and such humour, and bright
