Yes! Especially herded, indeed, with the echoes of the "No Popery" cry still ringing many very special reasons for passing their necks under George Brown's yoke. They remember with much gratitude the freatmen which BALDWIN received at the hands BROWN: how lovally and consistently Mr. HINCES was backed up in his great effort. to develop the material resources of country. They cannot have forgotten how earnestly Mr. Brown encouraged Irishmer Know-Nothing persecution in the United States! Then he invoked the ten plagues of Egypt as preferable to a large immigratio of Irish "Dogans!" Surely the Irish should take heed before venturing into alliance, with those who heretofore have been their bitterest opponents in this country. Brown will use them now, if he can, to his own purposes; the has coquetted wit every party in the country, and traded the prejudices of every class to forward his own and his paper's interests; and within "the past three months, he has given abundant evidence of his determination to play his game of faction over again.

The Hamilton Times was not very long ag on independent ground; it tried to reason away the necessity for the great Grit Convention; it advocated reorganization of party among the electors, and Union for the pose of Government between the party leaders. It recognised the necessity of the situation and was patriotic enough to believe, that the first union Government should have a fair of organizing opposition to a Government Globe. The Phale, a steam corvette of 2Fguns, has been lately fitting out at Plymouth, for the West Indies and American station. Among those of her officers who have already joined is a young gentleman fourteen years of age, the junior midshipman This poor boy had not been on board the corvette three days before he was subjected to stir a muscle, and then with a sharp instruinflicted, but the lad must wear a disfiguring brand all his life long-a thick black line down the ridge of his now and over each nostril. Nothing could obliterate the mark except a cruel and continuous operation, attend ed by the utmost pain; and the efficacy even of that remedy is at best doubtful. These abominable bullies being sailors, knew the process well, and they have probably stamped the badge too deep for it to be crased. The ill-used youth complained to the captain of the Phabe, and that gentleman, on making inquirles, and discovering the ring-leader, at once ordered the fellow to regard himself as dismissed from her Majesty's service with disgrace There cannot be the's slightest, wavering as to the sentence which should be receivinflicted this indignity and pain upon his boy-comrade. Let any parent put himself in the position of the victim's parents, and judge how they must regard her Majesty's service if justice be not done upon the author of this most abominable and cowardly torment. As for the boy who has suffered such cruelty, we hope to see him wear the badge under the Queen's pennant till his friends are proud to know him by it. He is stamped with the "broad arrow" for life; but if he sticks to the sea, and does his duty, he dehe should be called "the Queen's Midshipman;" and her Majesty herself, we think supplying fresh air to a sick chamber, which seen in effective use for some time, is, by a simple extension of the principle upon which it is based, to be adapted to railway cars for the purpose of transporting dressed meats from distance to our markets. The device is to with an aperture near the floor, and another John H. Walker, Esq. ong and narrow opening near the top, Within this inclosed space three shelves, or compartments, are to be fitted, the two lower being seives,-the first holding lime and the second charcoal. The upper compartment to be lined with zinc to contain ice, having a bucket below to catch the water. The which enters the aperture at the bottom the compartment is purified by passing through the lime and charcoal, and after being cooled and moistened by contact with the ice, finds ts way out of the upper opening, thus keeping up a constant current of pure, cool air, at an expense after first cost of only a few cents per hour. It is claimed that a car thus provided can be kept filled with perfectly pure an tances, and reach their destination in as good rder as when shipped. A car with this attachment has just been completed, and an exerimental trip will soon be made. All perons who know that most of the meat in our narkets is from animals that have been jaded oughened by long travel before reaching the laughter-houses, will hope for the success of this new method of transporting food, - London (C.
