Mr. GALT expressed confidence that to 20 against Goodwood. the Imperial Government had no intention to depart from the engagements entered into, THIS MORNING'S DESPATCHES crament to take any other steps than those it was taking. With regard to expenditure accounts would have to be brought down yearly, and Parliament had power at any time to arrest them just as the Imperial Parliament had power with regard to the coast defences of England. Desiring to maintain connection with England we must respect the conditions on which she deems it desirable to maintain that connection. that the hon, member for Sherbrooke had thrown an entirely new light upon the question, which he had viewed rather in regard to the future than to the immediate present, but he (Mr. Chanveau) trusted that if ever the separation, which had been foreshadowed were to become accomplished, it would at least be beyond the range of our own time, and asserted that it would be especially regret ed by the French population, which were peculiarly attached to British rule, and distrustful of the aggressions of the neighbour-
