Who is Mrs. Wins ow? As this question is frequently asked, we will simply say that she is a lady who, for upwards of thirty years, has untiringly devoted her time and talents as a Female Physician and nurse, principally among children. She has especially studied the constitution and wants of this numerous class, and, as a result of this effort and practical knowledge, obtained in a lifetime spent as nurse and physician, she has compounded a Soothing Syrup for children teething. It operates like magicgiving rest and health, and is, moreover, sure to regulate the bowels. In consequence of this article, Mrs. Winslow is becoming world-renowned as a benefactor of her race; children certainly do RISEUP and bless her; especially is this the case in this city. Vast quantities of the Soothing Syrup are DAILY sold and used here. We think Mrs. Winslow has immortalized her name by this invaluable article, and we sincerely believe thousands of children have been saved from an early grave by its timely use, and that millions yet unborn will share its benefits, and unite in calling her blessed. No MOTHER has discharged her duty to her suffering little one, in our opinion, until she has given it the benefit of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Try it, Try it, mothers-TRY IT NOW-Ladies' lisitor, New York City.

SIMPLIFICATION OF DRILL .- Here is the opinion of the London Times, apropos of the Aldershot Militia review, recently noticed by our London correspondent :- " The art and practice of encamping, the methods of economizing fire and throwing away the fewest possible shots-these departments of discipline are utterly neglected for the sake of a few parade movements and a good show in marching His glossy black hair on the top of his head | towards the close of the struggle one of the His eyes slanted downward, as if some chap duced all his words of command to two: He popped, she blushed such a deep orange all such movements as we teach at Aldershot If it hadn't been for her slant-eyed glance, formations as would be actually employed past. The first example of what modern tactics were coming to was given in the American civil war, where it was said that best of the Northern commanders had re-Mass! 'String out!' according as it was necessary that the troops should be concentrated or deployed into line. In the Russian army all parade movements-that is to say, -have just been utterly abolished, and the drill of the soldier reduced to such simple against an enemy. At Chalons, the other day, the French commander instilled precisely the same doctrine into the troops under his direction, telling them to confine their work to the practice of indispensable managages. Now, can we not take a lesson in common sense? Cannot our generals convince themselves that substance is better than show, and if both cannot be had, it is the show which should be sacrificed, and not the substance? Cannot they see that, though steadiness in 'marching ast' may indicate steadiness, not without it; worth, in other particulars skilful shooting is of far more importance, and that 'm wements' such as would shield a battalion from fire are of more consequence than the most approved ' parade movements' known to the profession? The art of war as regards the private soldier is now simple, and yet we persist in neglecting it for the sake of those " mysteries of parade which other armies have

How Women Fail as Workers .- It seemel to me that women might especially su cee ! as wood engravers, so I went to one of the most experienced and successful engravers in the city and consulted with him, "Don't you see the difficulty?" he asked, with great And her cream colored scalp she fondly laid | kindness and interest. " No! said I, you must instruct me," "Well," answered he, "I have employed women here very often, and I wish I could feel more encouraged, but the truth is, that when a young man' comes to me and begins his work he feels that it is his life's business, how to cut his future out of the little blocks before him. Wife, family, home, happiness, are all to be carved by his hand, and he settles steadily and carnestly to his labor, determined to master it, and with every incitement spurring him on. He connot marry until he knows his trade. It is exa tly the other way with the girl. She may be as poor as the youth, and an wholly d p nient upon her labor for her living. But she fe la that she will probably be murried by an 1-by, He found them enjoying their guileless selves and then she must give up word engraving. So she goes on listlessly; she has no ambition to excel; and she does not feel that her happiness depends upon it. She will marry, and then her husband's wages will support het. She may not say so," said the engraver, " but " she thinks so, and it spoils her work." The same is true with regard to many employm n's in which women have been engaged. The reason is the same as that given by our old bachelor. They do not feel that these duti a are the business of their lite, and that their success or failure depends upon the manner n which they are performed.

THE BELEASED CAPTIVES .- The A'yssinian cutives (says a letter from near Magein'a) cannot be said to bear many traces of their long confinement. Consul Cameron is sedly broken down, but has mended considerably since his arrival in camp. In spite of the intense and increasing anxiety they must have endured during the past month, a few grey hairs seem to be the only souvenirs they have brought with them from Magdala. The Germans are, however, taking back to Fatherland And often at night, when the Tycoon's wife souvenirs of another kind-beautiful Abyssinian wives and quivers full of children, the latter as robust and neisy as any on whom Twas a bald-headed specter, flitting about the brawling Rhine throws its spray. The fact is, they had been living in luxury up there, and so far as the cuisine and liqueurs are concerned, have reason to regret their being transferred to the British camp. T. arrack, and choice wines are unknown here: the captives could not be treated with cigars and cogna; as they had expected, and "What, not even rum?" showed the surprise they felt on being told that the army had been deprived of that beverage too. Had they asked for a glass of water, the probability is that in nine tents out of ten they would have been able to exclaim, "What, not even water?" for all supplies of that necessary have failed; none can be had nearer , than the Bashillo, seven miles off. We suffer. more from want of water here than ever we did at Zoulla. In point of kit, too, the majority of our new made friends seem to be well off, requiring from baif a dozen to five-and twenty servants to attend it to the shore; but probably their indents may be subjected to a little of the fashionable cutting down which: has been practised so pitilessly and successfully upon others.

No POLITICAL ENTHUSIASE .- It seems that for once the American people are to pass through a Presidential campaign without the usual excitement and enthusiasm. From Maine to California, North and South, there is almost a dead political calm over the land, Hero worship has passed away, and Grant, simply as Grant, excites no uproar or adoration. As a general he seems to have don this duty, and the country has rewarded him for it by crowning him with the highest hohours in their possession. As the nominee of the Republican party, he has set a good example of holding his tongue, and Mr. Speaker Colfax seems to be doing the same thing. Grant will do nothing to put himself in the White House. If he is elected, it must be on his own merits, without a fulsome parade of speeches, principles, and promises, which are so often made but to be broken. Both he and the Speaker have started for an extended Western tour, and if both should remain in the heart of the Rocky mountains until the middle of next November, we doubt if it would influence a single vote either way. The same is true of the Democratic party. If it nominates Chase, or Pendleton, Hancock, Hendricks, or Seymour, there will be very little excitement about the matter, save in the vicinity of Fourteenth-street and Seventhavenue. Wheever gets the pomination, we may expect one hundred guns in the City Hall Square, and the came in Baltimore, and possibly in New Orleans, if that city can afford the powder. We admit that the nomination of Chase would create some excitement for the time being, and serve to increase the interest in the contest, but the Chief Justice, like the General, would remain silent and the sphinx would rule the hour. It is a fact that political enthusia-m is so dead, that the picture-makers of this city complain they cannot The total number of deaths by this disease are sel! their portraits of Grant. The reasons for this are obvious-there are no really gr. at and vital questions before the people, the Southern States are being rapidly re-admitted, the negroes do vote, slavery is dead, there is a disposition to pay the national debt, there is no possibility of a foreign war, and the country is in a prosperous condition, its money easy, and an immense harvest coming in.
