It is one of the amenities of journalism to notice encouragingly any fresh labourer in the common field. The latest appeal to our courtesy comes from the District of Muskoka Settlers' Guide, and we gladly award the advertisement for which we are drawn upon. Muskoka is a fine place. Everybody does not know exactly where it is, and therefore, we announce its position, taking as our informant, the President of the Muskoka District Settlers' Association, who tells us:

1st. The River Severn may be taken as the Southern boundary. 2nd. The French River and Lake Nipissing as the Northern boundary. 3rd. The Eastern and Western boundaries are situated within and between 79° and 80° west from Greenwich. The total length is about ninety miles and the extreme breadth about forty-five miles. Area in square miles about 2,300. Area in acres 1,500,000. To live between 79° and 80° is a privilege hitherto understood but imperfectly. We have pleasure in making known generally some few of its advantages. The Guide conducts us thereto in the verses below:

One hundred acres every man Shall have on terms good. Only to come and lead the van To grand Muskoka's wood; Here are the falls of splendour, Magnificent and grand; And here are nature's wonders, On these free tracts of land. Nor need the intending settler fear that life is to contain neither beer nor skittles, for we are told of Muskoka that: Here may the angler's wishes Be more than satisfied: A good shot may make riches, Down by the Severn side. With the weapon of Robin Hood of course—a consideration which does not, however, prevent us from appreciating the following disinterested appeal: Your old friends and your comrades May wish to live at ease. Take courage boys and come along. It will your sweetest care. And it is dangerous to delay: The Townships are laid out in lots, The road on either side From Severn to Muskoka's falls Is ample, good, and wide; On either side you may not have Those lands, as not located; But if you do not come in time You're sure to be deflected. Whereas, if you take the role of the prompt settler, here is what is predicted for the future of your progeny: "The daughters like their mother, And the boys resemble him." So much the worse for the boys perhaps, but then they are to have the advantage of instructive communion, for: "Often in the silent night, The panther's voice you'll hear." With which animal the Settler converses upon equal terms, and with telling argument: "A right good shot is he— He can pick the eye out of squirrel High up the tallest tree And seldom ever a bird or hare, From his deadly aim goes free. While the picture is completed by the sketch of such a lucky dog as one must go to Muskoka to find: "Within the shadow of the door His faithful mastiff lies, With nose between his outstretched paws, And drowsy, half-shut eyes, While now and then his head he lifts To fight the hated flies." After which advertisement due notice here: "U. S. Gazette. While science has labored for the benefit of the human race, it is but a poor return to have imitations start up and claim merits for their articles which never existed except in appearance. Since the introduction and the remedial effects of this valuable preparation have been so plain, a legion have commenced the manufacture of cheap imitations in point of merit there is no comparison, more than the counterfeit remedy, the genuine bark. One has a value for which the latter receives its value, while the other is worthless and is palpably out upon the unwary. The effects of the medicine are: It cures the Great Cholera, Remedy which would cure the first and second stages of Consumption, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, &c. and now this is especially evident. When George Watts declared that he could apply the power of steam to machinery he was laughed at. When Stevenson proclaimed that he could apply the power of steam to drive a car on land at the rate of twelve miles an hour he was laughed at. It was when first that there was an Indian medicine called the Great Cholera Remedy that would cure the first and second stages of Consumption, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, &c. and now this is especially evident.
