and Militia from which the Laprairie meeting sprang. But besides that of the grand field at Laprairie, we publish in another column the programme of the Metropolitan Rifle Association, put up entirely by private patronage, which all things considered, bears no mean comparison to the larger one.

The dismissal of two officers of the 23rd Battalion, and disbanding their company, as will be seen in the General Orders of to-day, will impress upon Volunteers in general the fact that no soldier of whatever rank may refuse to obey the orders of his superior in command in any case.

As the first of October approaches the question as to what will be the result of the Militia Bill of last session, occupies the attention of Volunteers and Militiamen in increased ratio. It is useless to conceal the fact that in the Province of Ontario there is an undecided but not the less unmistakable feeling of dread—if such a feeling can properly be attributed to British soldiers—that the result will be the death of the present force without producing any effective force in its place.

The recent deserved promotion of Lt. Col. A. G. FORREST and Major THOMAS ROSS, suggests the name of another officer whose long service both in the city and at the front entitles him to some such recognition at the hands of the military authorities; and in recognizing the force under the name of an opportunity will offer for the purpose. We allude to the certain of Staff Surgeon-Major, which there certainly ought to be in the capital, and we know of none more deserving the position than Surgeon-VAN CORLANDT, whose services are alluded to above.
