NOTES OF THE LATE WAR.

GEN. SHERMAN'S NARROW ESCAPE. A correspondent of the Augusta (Ga.) Constitutionalist tells the following story :-One morning four of my, company, myself among the number, found ourselves in the wilds of South Carolina, and having no idea that Sherman's advance was close to us. Hunger was not to be put to silence, and no sooner had we agreed to search for food than we came discerned signs, of a farm-house, and a land flowing with milk and honey. So we filed off down the road. We found a small farm-house been killed in Virginia, and who, with four or five faithful slaves, still managed to keep her becoming reinvigorated. Suddenly a gleam of sabres and uniforms, as about a doz n their approach. They galloped up, and orderbench.
