Who is the Rightfel Heir to the FRENCH EMPIRE .- A new pretender to the and whiskey, and of their own will retired French throne and the name of Napoleon from the country which they had made the III., has arisen in a poor schoolmaster living graveyard of our soldiers. Such facts as in the small Saxon town of Weemsdort, who these ought not to be obscured or forgotten, claims to be the legitimste grandson of Napoleon the first. It his statements are trustbecause they embody a wholesome reproof worthy, Napoleon's son, the Duke of Reichof that over-weening pride and pretension of stadt, fell in love with a young flungarian FAMILY GROCERIES, superior military virtue, prowess and heroism countess, during a journey which he had made in Hungary, in 1830, and as she refused to be anything but his wife, he resolved to marry her. The ceremony took place at a village church near the city of Debreezen, by the regular village priest. This marriage, the Saxon pretender asserts, was perfectly legitimate, inasmuch as, socording to the laws governing the imperial house of Austria, the Duke of Reichstalt

> The pretender says that a few days after his marriage the Duke had to leave his her with him to the court of Vienna. There are certain circumstances that render the whole story of this person improbable. But several diplomats at the courts of Berlin, Vienna and Dresden, before whom the full statement of the facts have been laid, have stated that, in their opinion, the schoolmaster will succeed in making out his case Even the supposition of such an heir would cause uneasiness to Louis Napoleon, but we incline to the opinion that the whole story their conversationals about the "myste-
