On Thursday last, while aloft, engaged in shortening sail, my hand got frost-bitten, and I was obliged to come down. The doctor told me to rub my hands with snow. A few moments afterwards the boatswain salied me on the forecastle, and told me to go to unbend the jib. I told him I could not use my hand. Then he got a belaying-pin, and cut in my head a gash an inch and a half long. When the captain was told that I was not able to go aloft, he ordered me aloft, and dicould not go. The boatswain then took a belaying-pin again and beat me about the body until I was unable to stand. A similar assault was made upon me on
