THE COLONIAL SOCIETY.

The inaugural dinner of this society was given on the 10th inst., at Willis's rooms, the chair being taken by Lord Bury, M. P. About two hundred sat down to dinner, among whom were the Hon. Reverdy Johnson, the Duke of Manchester, the Marquis of Normandy, Earl Granville, the Earl of Albemarle, Viscount Monk, Lord Alfred Churchill, the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone, Sir John Pakington, Sir Stafford Northcote, Sir Charles Nicholson, Sir George E. Cartier, Right Hon. H. Childers, Hon. Dudley Fortescue, M. P., Hon. A. Kinnaird, M. P., Hon. W. Macdougall, C. B., and many others.

The usual loyal toasts were given. Speeches were made by Reverdy Johnson, Mr. Gladstone, and Mr. Childers. Mr. Fortescue proposed "Our Representative Institutions," which was replied to by the Duke of Manchester, Sir John Pakington, and Sir George E. Cartier. We reproduce the Times' report:—

Sir G. E. CARTIER, who claimed commonality with the Saxons on the ground that though a French Canadian he was merely an Englishman speaking French (cheers and laughter) in returning thanks on behalf of the Colonial Parliament, pointed to Canada as an instance of the success which had attended the establishment of representative institutions in our dependencies.

The Marquis of NORMANBY proposed "Our Colonial Empire," coupling with the toast the name of Earl Granville. Earl GRANVILLE—If the objects of this society be carried out in the manner anticipated by many, though they may not lead to the establishment of such a council as that alluded to by the noble duke at his side (the Duke of Manchester) they will probably take away the sting from that witty saying—"that the colonies were like planets which only looked to the sun and did not look much of one another. (Laughter.)" happened to mention the other night that a distinguished friend of mine, by way of encouraging me, said the office I had accepted was one which he had always considered required a modicum of sense. (Renewed laughter.) I am rather afraid the Minister of the Great Republic, who has spoken with such singular eloquence this evening, will feel that it is a little want of sense on my part which makes me unprepared at this moment to open negotiations with him for the cession of British Canada. (Laughter and cheers.)

However that may be, I can assure him that at their just value those powerful expressions which he has used, and which I have not time to repeat, are not only not in sufficient sense to appreciate the objects which he has used, but are in fact a little want of sense on my part which makes me unprepared at this moment to open negotiations with him for the cession of British Canada. (Laughter and cheers.)

It is by no means certain yet how the insurance will terminate. The Spanish authorities seem to be confident, and that they are by troops and supplies from Spain, while the insurgents are receiving large amounts from the native Cubans, and from outside parties, landing them at points where they can readily communicate with them. It is deemed advisable by the Government, and also by the commander of the West India Squadron, to keep a large force at Cuba, to protect American citizens and their property from molestation, and orders have been issued for that purpose.

Senators Trammell, Edmonds and Grimes compose the Senate Committee on the conference upon the disagreeing votes of the two houses upon the Tenth of October. The House had not up to the time of adjournment been informed of the action of the Senate.

for the abolition of slavery in the West Indies, one of the most glorious and disinterested measures of which this country can boast. (Cheers.) Lord Russell gave self-government to British North America. Lord Grey did the same for Australia, and left his strong mark on all the great questions of colonial policy. (Cheers.) My duty, for whatever time I may be connected with the Colonial Office, will be to maintain the high character which has thus been impressed on the present Order, and to confine this gracious mark of the Sovereign's favour to those who have done real and great service to that Empire, if I may be allowed to repeat that well-worn but grand old Castilian phrase, "upon which the sun never sets." (Loud cheers.)

The new Dominion and the colonies in the West was proposed by the Hon. A. Kinnaird, M. P. and responded to by the Hon. W. Macdougall. Speeches were made by gentlemen from other British colonies.
