LOCAL NEWS.

No More on the Hill To-Day.—The Band of the Rifle Brigade will not play on Major's Hill this afternoon, in consequence of their being engaged to play at the Banquet to Sir Francis Hincks, this evening, at half-past seven o'clock.

ATTENDED SCHOOL.—Yesterday morning a woman living on Ashburnham Hill, while labouring under a fit of temporary insanity, cut her throat very severely in two places. Dr. McKenney was sent for, and succeeded in closing up the wounds, but it is doubtful whether the unfortunate woman can recover.

AUCTION SALE OF FURNITURE.—Mr. A. Rowe, auctioneer, will sell at his rooms, Rideau-st., near the Bridge, this morning, at half-past ten o'clock, a large quantity of household furniture, carpets, cooking stoves, &c., also a superior seven octave rosewood piano, and some very handsome electro-plate ware of the finest quality.

POLICE COURT.—An Burke was charged with selling liquor without due authority of law, and was fined $20 and costs. Henderson Dunning drunk and disorderly, was fined $2 and costs. William Shees, also drunk and disorderly, $2 and costs.

STRENGTH FOLLOWS.—It is, perhaps, too much to expect that the Board of Health can make the city perfect in its sanitary condition, but we are assured that it is in their power to do much more than they have done. They may not be able to purify all the bad spots in the outskirts, but they surely might cause some of the pools of stagnant water in the heart of the city to be filled up.

BAUQUET IN HONOUR OF SIR FRANCIS HINCKS, K.C.M.G. The Banquet to Sir Francis Hincks, K.C.M.G., will take place at the RUSSELL HOUSE, ON WEDNESDAY, the 4th Instant, at half-past seven o'clock, p.m.

THE GROWTH OF ENGLAND.

In the time of Elizabeth England was the sole home of English-speaking men and women. It was a narrow country, tenanted by a small family of sons, and in mere state of territory and extent of population were regarded by some speculators as a sixth rate power.

Spain was then paramount. France was nearly her equal, and of course claimed to be her superior. The Holy Roman Empire was the first state in rank, and, perhaps, the third in actual power. Turkey, which in those days stood apart, splendid, majestic, mysterious, was not less formidable in the East than Spain was in the West. Those few countries held the world in fee.

A man specializing of material data only as to the chance of any one race ever coming to the fore of the others, would be a practical joke. In the days of Charles the Fifth, undoubtedly here given to every trader in the East. The earth seemed theirs, to move in as they would. Madrid was the centre of a vast system of rule, which embraced Europe on the left, Spain was but the home country, so to speak, of this great empire; Germany was the chief province; America the main colony. But the empire was established in Sicily, in Flanders, in the Milanese, as firmly as in the East, in the Caribbean Sea, and on the Pacific shores. The Rhine and the Danube were treated as Spanish rivers; Spain was the fashionable speech at Naples, at Genoa, at Bussate, at Mexico, at Vienna, as well as in the courtly circles nearer home. It was the language of trade, as well as of compliment and of diplomacy—the only tongue ever heard beyond the Line and beyond the Cape.

What is true of the idiom is also true of the costume. Spanish money was the circulating medium of the world. English merchants went they sent out vessels to Cambay, were obliged to exchange their unrecognised native coins for those fine Spanish doubloons which were known to every trader in the East. Since that day, what a change. From the time of Charles the Fifth, though the population of Spain itself has probably increased, the area of the Spanish-speaking country has greatly diminished, and that to our own all but exclusive profit. Under Elizabeth we began to grow. Then we left off fighting France—a pastime which illustrated our capacity for war, which had carried us into French vineyards once or twice in every century, but which had been wasting our money and our manhood in a contest without end. We could not hope to conquer France and hold it in easy fee.
