The advance agent is now here, but has, so far, been unsuccessful in finding an available location. It would be a pity i an-establishment of such repute, and in regard to which so much curiosity is felt on the part of our best citizens, should be kept away for such a reason, for there are suitable grounds, and we hope that those having control of them will render every facility for enabling this great School of Natural History to pay us a visit.

ST. GEORGE'S PIC-NIC.

The St. George's Society held their third ple-nic, yes erday, according to announcement, on the Mo Lay estate, near the resi dence of the Governor-General, Extensive preparations had been made for a large gathering. Two ample dancing floors had been laid, and a covered stage between them for the band. Several booths had been crected for refreshments-swings of different kinds for a first-rate picanic.

The morning looked a little like rain, and fears were generally entertained that it would come to spoil the pleasure. Notwithstanding this, however, there were about four hundred people on the ground shortly, after two o'clock, and at that time there were no. at once, on different parts of the ground, plied.
