That class of busia melancholy spectacle of a people who, after triumphing over one of the greatest dangers that could have beset their national existence, fell to quarrelling among themselves for the petty advantages of place and power. How much the excess of Johnson's stub borness may have contributed to the progress of the extreme Radical party, it would perhaps be difficult to decide. Undoubtedly there were grave faults on both sides; but Johnson at least deserves the credit of having done his best to maintain the constitution.

From President GRANT there is little to be expected. His popularity is already destroyed with the party which elected him, and the tendencyof his administration has been, so far, in the same direction as Jounson's that it is helping to build up his opponents. Curiously enough they were both Democrats in former days, and both owed their elevation to the Radicals; and though in this there may be nothing astonishing, when the great events through which the country was passing, when they achieved their fame, is taken into account, yet the circumstance is one which gives colour to the assumption that there is a "deliberate design" to change the character of the Government. Jourson was put upon the presidential ticket, merely that ABRAHAM LINCOLN might be elected : GRANT was put at the head of it, four years later, merely that the Radicals might win. When Jourson attempted to exercise his own judgment, he was thwarted by the party which elected him; before GRANT was elected he promised that he would have 4 no epinion of his own." If, then, the Rudicate can maintain, their Congressional majority, there appears to be little difficulty in their accomplishing any ulterior designs they may have in view. We doubt whether the next four years will bring our neighbours back to the point indicated by Mr. Jourson; but, we doubt also, Meanwhile the Socialists are showing an inwhether the men at the head of the Govern ment will risk an open revolution in that out uneasiness even by the moderate Libertime. RATE OF INTEREST.

It has often been subject of remark that whereas the Bank of England and other nonetary institutions in Europe after their rate of interest for the use of money in accordance with the law of supply and demand, no such rule applies here. That, let money be ever so low in the leading markets, the inevitable 7 per cent., run up in heavy ways to equal 10 per cent, is charged. Of course this for while many a man could see his way to transactions with money at a low rate, say ! per cent, a high rate shut him out entirely. These new dangers to navigation between the United States. and the continent of Europe are presumed as a portion of the results of the tremendous earthquakes that occurred in the Southern hemisphere some months back. The localities in which the obstructions lie are in the direct track of vessels bound hence to Europe and are passed over by hundreds of American and other craft, in the course of a year. And if such dangers are liable to be thus suddenly sprung upon in latitudes hitherto perfectly free from them, the necessity of a new survey of such a well frequented highway as the Atlantic Ocean is more necessary. Only two have yet been reported, but who knows but there may be others equally dangerous not yet fallen in with by any vessel that lived to tell of their knowledge? These new shoals lie low, and not being expected by a captain who had probably sailed over the spot for years, adds considerably to the danger, and the crashing of his doomed ship upon the treacherous rock, while calmly sailing along in fancied security at night is pected danger, but renders his knowledge of the fact useless to others by the suddenness and completeness of the catastrophe. The fate of the majority of the vessels that are lost is generally ascertained, but many are not. They leave port and are heard of no more they were lost-they are simply missing. EDEAUDRY'S NEW SERIES OF SAWS

This important improvement in saw mills, patented in Canada and in the United States, consist especially in a new method of hanging and operating gang saws for manufacturing lumber, without the use of the ordinary gate. The gang of save are attached at each end to cross heads, upported by a bifurcated pitman, and are the only weight to be supported. The saws and crossheads being very light, the speed of the saws is considerably increased. The new system operates well, and wood can never be more properly sawn, and in larger quantities. With the use of this improvement, mill propriet rs and lumber dealers can realize profits much larger than with the use of any other operating system.

Lumber merchants, saw mill proprietors, founders and business men in general, desirous to obtainthe rights and royalty of the natented improvement, should promptly address to Messrs TALBOT & TOUSIGNANT, 29 St Anne street, city of Quebec, advocates, from whom any information can be had, and where an operating model can be seen.

Royalty can be obtained for Canada and the United States, or for districts only. Quebec, August 18, 1869.

After the usual acclamations had been lavished upon her, the Swedish Diva retired from the platform and attempted to make her way from the artists' room to her carriage. But this was no casy matter. The way was blocked by an admiring throng anxious to get one look at close quarters, and perhaps a smile from the Queen Song. The police had ultimately to make way for Mile. > -An English paper reports the invention of a " surgical luxury," beside which others are mere bagatelles. This is a knife which cuts so rapidly that the patient has no time to feel t. The idea was undoubtedly borrowed from the celebrated story of the man who had his head cut off with such neatness and descatch that he did not know it until he sneezed. It was reported that the new instrument was tried upon a rabbit, which went on calmly eating its dinner in front, while it was being cut into ribbons in the rear. The inventor, Dr. Richardson, explains, however, that this was not exactly the case. He intended to try the experiment not upon a rabbit, but upon his own person, when, unfortunately, the knife broke at the very last moment. It can mended, and then we trust the ingenious gentleman will be able to eathis dinner in front and be cut to ribbons in the rear with all imaginable relish and satisfaction.

WHAT IS VITALITY ?-Some philosophers call it animal magnetism, some nervous force, others caloric, but whatever name it may be called, the thing meant is the main spring of existence, it is the principle we inherit, and which may be nourished by proper attention to the requirements of the body and the avoidance of excesses; it is wasted or destroyed by overtaxing the mind with study or anxiety and intemperate indulgencies; ndeed, it requires an expenditure of vitality for every thought or action equal to the magnitude of the thought or action. When the body and the brain are well balanced, the stomach is capable of restoring the waste; but when the brain is large in proportion, the stomach is incapable of supplying it; in other words, the expenditure is too large for the income.
