His Excellency the Governor General is expected to return to Ottawa before the end of the week.

Hon. Mr. McDougall will probably not leave for Fort Garry before the Governor General's return. It is understood that there will be no difficulty about the delivery of the deeds of transfer of North West Territory before the boat is raised.

The Queen's proclamation is not expected to reach Ottawa for some weeks, but it is understood that the Hon. Mr. McDougall will not delay his departure, as it is desirable to cross the plains before the first snow.

In connection with the subject of the Exhibition, we regret to hear that the Hon. Mr. CARLETON, member for London, will be prevented, in consequence of the serious and dangerous illness of one of his family, from carrying out his arrangements for the reception of the distinguished visitors expected; his unavoidable absence will be greatly felt, in the loss of the labour and attention which he would have been otherwise able to devote to the success of every feature of the Exhibition.

As far as existing indications go there does not seem to be much reason to expect that the coming session of the Ontario Legislature, which is called together for the despatch of business of the 3rd November next, should extend beyond Christmas at farthest. No heavy political programme, we take it, will be designated in the opening speech of the Lieutenant-Governor, and with the exception of the ordinary hair-splitting objections, which it is only reasonable to suppose Mr. BLAKE will take to every measure brought forward by the Government, it is not likely that any very serious opposition will be attempted. We expect, indeed, that if any pre-arranged and determined attack upon the personnel of the Government is made, the onslaught will rather fall upon Mr. SYDENHAM RICHARDS than upon PREMIER BLAKE, and that such force as it will have will come from the Government side of the House rather than from the Opposition. Mr. SCOTT, no doubt, will have something to say as to the inequality of the amount of revenue collected from the Ottawa district, as compared with other sections of the Province, and we only hope that he may say it effectively and to good purpose. After the receipt of the late despatch from the Colonial Office, with regard to the constitutionality of the grant of the further subsidy to Nova Scotia, at the last session of the Dominion Parliament, even Mr. WOOD, we think will begin to feel some inkling of the truth that the ground of his objections has been cut from under his feet, and there will be no need of impressing upon him very strongly the unconstitutionality of any attempt in itself of the Local House to repeal Dominion legislation, or to attempt to revise the Acts of the General Government. The opinion of the law officers of the Crown in England is conclusive on the point, and Mr. BLAKE's thin subtleties will be apt to make much headway against their dicta. The Government, it is said, will be in a position to announce a surplus of two millions of dollars, and it remains to be seen whether the PREMIER will stick to his policy of hoarding, or adopt more generous and liberal sentiments with regard to the development of the resources of the Province, and the requirements of the public service. The old woman's plan of carefully hoarding up her money in the heel of her stocking was a very good one, no doubt, in its day, and we should be the last to contradict its antiquarian advantages, but it is beginning to be understood that the production of interest is a thing not to be contemned by the sagacious economist. The hon. PREMIER, it is true, has advanced so far as to recognize the utility of banking institutions, but does not seem to be very well aware that a young country like this, where our national resources need only the investment of capital to give the handiwork of dividends, there are other modes of laying out his surplus more advantageous than any which have yet seemed to commend themselves to his mind.

The Trades' Union Congress at Birmingham, Eng., which has lately adjourned, occupies a good deal of attention in the English press. The relative position of labour and capital, and the advancing demands of the working classes in England, both for political and social reform, are among the most important questions which now occupy the minds of English statesmen. The necessity of the satisfactory solution of the complicated problems of home policy in England is more and more pressing out of sight the questions relating to foreign affairs. With the extension of the electoral franchise, and the increasing of political knowledge and education among the mass, an era of change and agitation is setting in at home, which is watched with grave interest, not unmitigated with anxiety, by all students of English progress. The deliberations of the Trades' Union Congress are characterized by all the journals commenting upon its action as being marked by moderation and practical good sense, although some of the positions put forward are declared to be untenable. The question of pauperism which is now so grave and terrible an evil in existing English society, and the spruagling of skilled labour, received the earliest attention of the Congress, and was debated with a keen insight in the social condition of the working classes themselves. There has been a great cry among certain working men's advocates about "going back to the land," but some of the most popular and impressive speakers, Mr. GEORGE FORSTER included, had the courage to point out plainly and unmistakably that pauperism has been not so much the result of over-population and unrestricted competition as of the drinking habits, and loose manner of living, which characterized such a large section of the working-classes, pointing out that there was still room in England for men to live and work, if only they would take upon themselves the necessity of economical living, and putting by something for "a rainy day." The other questions which came up prominently in the debates, were the importance of dispelling the prevalent impression that trades' unions were promotive of that system of terrorism which has been so frequently charged against them, and the desirability of obtaining for trades' unions themselves the legal privileges and recognition granted to all other friendly societies unconnected with trade. Their claims, in a word, put in another way, resolve themselves into a demand for the repeal of the Combination Laws. There is no doubt, taking the majority of trades' unionists, that they are opposed to violence and terrorism in their dealings with parties unconnected with their organization; so much is admitted, but the question is simply this, whether the very principle of the system of trades' unions is not calculated to hinder free individual action, and to interfere with the rights of property in capital. They may denounce with perfect sincerity the outrages which are committed in their name, but the fact remains that they are committed by zealous trade unionists, according to their own showing in the interests of trades' unions. "Special" legislation, therefore, becomes necessary, and although legislation for a class as distinct from the common law governing all sections of the community is an evil in itself, and will never be justified unless by the pressing necessities of the situation, still experience has shown that "class" or special legislation has been unavoidable in many instances. So long as no system of equalizing the respective rights of capital and labour, other than "strikes," can be hit upon, the necessity of the combination laws will be felt in England, and these statutes left unrepaled. The moderate and intelligent discussion of this important social problem cannot fail, however, to have the best effect in hastening their satisfactory solution.

The Twenty-Fourth Annual Exhibition of the Agricultural Association of Ontario, which commenced at London on Monday, promises to be the most successful which has been held since 1865. The generous rivalry existing in this matter between the several cities at which the Exhibition is annually held, has incited the "Forest City" to exert herself to the utmost on this occasion, and in the person of PRINCE ARTHUR and the GOVERNOR-GENERAL and LIEUT.-GOVERNOR, has infused even greater zeal than usual into the efforts to make this Exhibition unequalled, if possible, by any in the past. The mere number of entries is not after all the test of the real merit of an Exhibition of this character; quantity, if possible, but quality before every thing else, is the only way in which its real usefulness and expense can be estimated, and we are glad to see from our London contemporaries that this feature of the Exhibition has received the closest attention. The preparations for his reception indicate a warm welcome to the Prince, and nothing has been left undone by the citizens or the Committee of the Exhibition to ensure his comfort during his visit. The London correspondent of the Hamilton Spectator gives the following programme of the week:

MONDAY.—The arrangement and classification of articles for exhibition will be completed this day; none but officers of the association will be admitted to the exhibition; the exhibition will be admitted to the grounds. This is properly now the first day of the Fair.

TUESDAY.—The judges will meet at 10 a.m. and arrange for their duties. The Crystal Palace will be closed all day, but visitors will be admitted to the grounds on payment of the usual fee. In the evening the meeting of the Fruit Growers' Association of Ontario will take place at 7 p.m. in the City Hall. His Royal Highness will arrive by special train at 8 p.m. accompanied by the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, Sir John A. Macdonald, and perhaps some other members of the Dominion and Provincial Governments.

WEDNESDAY.—It has not yet been arranged when the royal visit will be made to the exhibition. The Premier, however, is expected to complete this week as early as possible. The grounds and buildings will be thrown open, admission 25 cents. This will be the grand day of the exhibition. The annual meeting of the Mechanics' Institute Association will take place in the evening at 7 o'clock. The public will be admitted on this day as before. At 2 p.m. all the prize animals will be shown in the ring. The President of the Association, Mr. E. Malloy, of Niagara, will deliver the annual address at the annual meeting, which takes place in the City Hall at 7 o'clock on this evening. At this meeting Auditors will be elected, and a gentlemen called upon for his consideration certain amendments to the constitution. The charge of admission will be the same as before. At 2 p.m. the Exhibition of the Dominion and Provincial Governments will be held at the Crystal Palace, except exhibitions.

THURSDAY.—The goods will all be removed this day from the premises, and the animals awarded. The Palace and grounds will be open only to exhibitors.

FRIDAY.—The goods will all be removed this day from the premises, and the animals awarded. The Palace and grounds will be open only to exhibitors.

At French Inguery has invented a new arrangement for persons waiting for the appointment of the Premier, to take into account the time in which they are to be seen, a great number of fishes of various sizes will be considered, and some will be sold at the first time the other day. "Malama is his fair toll," said the servant; "but if, while waiting for his, monsieur would like to pass his time in fishing, he will find here some bait and line. As for fish, the shell is full of them."

JAMAICA MOBILE AND STEAMERS.—In a letter from Jamaica to the New York Tribune we find the following: "A Jamaica steamer, on its way to quite a curiosity of construction and arrangement; it is best described perhaps as being an inclosed piece of out of doors." There are veranda screens everywhere, every room opens upon one. Then there are doors and windows of unusual size, and where there ought to be solid walls the whole side of the house is made of glass, and the interior is a veritable garden. The blinds called "jalouses," the interior partitions are all of glass, the floors are uncarpeted and the furniture plain old-fashioned mahogany. The stateroom is paid only for sleeping. At one end of the dining-room is a very large sideboard, it is the family altar, on which every guest offers sacrifice as soon as he enters the room. On the sideboard are ranged glasses of every description, while on the table above them the lordly decanters, liquor bottles and ale jugs hold their state. On the corner stone and sideboard, the family life; one contains rum, brandy, and Jamaica, the other several kinds of wine. The breakfast table is a veritable altar, with rum and water. New York drinkers might learn a lesson here. A West Indian never takes his rum run; it is always a glassful of rum in a bottle of water. This is the common drink of the country, and is called "shack anchor."

The Fall Mill Gazette says: "Striped of details, the revelations which were made at the meeting of the shareholders of the Albert Life Assurance Company may be condensed into a very simple story. The collapse of the office was clearly due to a reckless extension of business. Nothing seems to have been thought of except how to multiply the amount of premium, without regard to the risk thereby incurred. Not content with the issue of individual policies, the managers launched out into wholesale purchases of policies, and the result was that another was thus absorbed, but while the annual sum of premiums was enlarged, the expenditure expanded also, and at a ruinous rate. A gentleman called upon for his consideration certain amendments to the constitution. The charge of admission will be the same as before. At 2 p.m. the Exhibition of the Dominion and Provincial Governments will be held at the Crystal Palace, except exhibitions.

THE MURDER OF FRAU LIEB TRINE.

The London Daily News, commenting upon the reported murder of Fraulein Trine, the African traveller, observes: "Africa had exacted another victim, another sacrifice to the fascinating, but deadly, mysteries of her inner secret. News comes to us from Malta that the young lady, Fraulein Trine, who was the wife of DANIEL HIRSH RASTMAN, was made a party for the purpose of having her lower lip of these certain portions of the
