A Shot in the Dark.

STRANGE SOLUTION OF A FAMILY MYSTERY. From the New York World.

A paper published at Burlington

New Jersey, affirms that the following is a true story, and can be substantiated by persons now living in that town. Some time ago a gentleman of considerable wealth in that vicinity, and who was supposed to keep a large sum of money in his desk was aroused from sleep at midnight by the sound of some one forcing open one of the lower doors of his house. Arising quietly from his bed. and taking a loaded gun in his hand he softly raised a sash over the door from which the noise proceeded, and on ooking out could distinguish the forms by his random shot. Upon this supposition the excitement gradually subsided was quoted only by garrulous old dames and imaginative nurses. But time and death have at last brought the true solution of the mystery, through the dying confession of a man recently deceased in the village. Athough the son of a well known citizen, and of good general repute himself, he, in company with a scapegrace comrade, had actually attempted to prepetrate the robbery, and the shot fired had inflicted a mortal wound upon the comrade. The dying man added that he had borne his bleed ing comrade to a place of concealment. kept him there while he lived, and then ouried him by night in that part of the graveyard where the disturbance of the soil had been noticed. It was their first and last attempt at crime, and had been terribly expiated by the speedy death

Electrical Phenomenon

A letter in the Ottawa (Ill.) Republican gives the following account of an electrical phenomenon :-"In the engine-room of the Peru Plough Factory there is a leather belt from eight to ten inches wide. This belt is drawn over two drums, one of which is iron, and the other I think, is wood. These drums make about fifty revolutions per minute. Standing in front of and below the belt, and placing the extended fingers within six inches of it, the experimenter will observe a multitude of white rays, which start from the belt and project themselves in the hree inches the rays form a sheet of white light, its base extending across the band. It then breaks up into pencils of rays, each pencil converging to a delicately fine point. The points of the white rays approximate at the tips of the fingers, but never touch them. On the contrary, the ends of the fingers are illunot as vivid as a true electric spark, but coroner and the press, and fix things. and knowing that no train was due in hand near the belt, touch any one in reach with his left hand he will experience. greatly trightened, and, jumping out of a sensible shock.
