

THE OTTAWA TIMES, MARCH 8, 1870.

number of rogues to take advantage of their folly. There was no political right, no social question at stake. Only as a matter of humanity was there any interest in the matter, the sole result of this wretched adventure is a broken head to some unfortunate vagabond. And yet our system of centralization gives such an interest to anything dating from Paris that all France is in excitement over this parody of a revolution."

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

Ottawa Music Hall—Herndon & Leslie's Opera House Company.
Ottawa Literary Club—W. McKay Wright.
Tenders—K. Aroldi.
Spring Impostions—Wm J. McMaster & Co.
Situation Wanted—apply at the Times Office.

DOMINION REPORTS.

It is the intention of Mr. JAMES CORTON, the Managing Director of "THE TIMES PRINTING AND PUBLISHING COMPANY," to publish, during the present Session, after the model of HANSARD, a volume entitled DOMINION REPORTS of Debates in the Canadian Parliament.

The basis of the proposed volume will be very full reports prepared by a staff of the best reporting talent in the country.

To insure a perfectly authentic record, the members, as in the English model, will be requested to make corrections of any errors that may happen to creep into the reporter's notes, but nothing will be inserted not spoken in Parliament.

Also, to insure completeness, as in the case of the English model, all superfluous words and repetitions will be left out. This will bring the volume within portable size, and ensure its readability.

Orders from booksellers throughout the Dominion will be duly attended to, and the usual trade discount allowed.

The publisher has secured the services of a gentleman of very long experience to edit the proposed DOMINION REPORTS.

If sufficient inducement is offered it will be translated and published in French.

almost total loss of life would indicate that the collision took place at night. The New York World says the Japanese coast near Yokohama has been a fatal locality for American and English vessels. The steamer Hornet was lost there with 270 lives, Feb. 13 of last year, and the steamer Tullibache, with 22 lives, June 17. The Onida was a third-rate screw-of-eight gun. She had been on the Asiatic station three years. Her commanding officer was Commander Edward P. Williams, of Maine, a gallant naval officer of the late war.

JEAMES—ISM.

The following remarks upon the piquant novelties of journalism are from the Hamilton Spectator. En passant, we may be permitted to remark that the Jeannism and twaddling sophistry of our "independent" journals have induced the introduction of a similar vulgarit here—that of particularizing the dresses (specifying the wearers) of ordinary lady guests at a State Ball. O tempora, o mores! It is the pinchbacking of New York, which recognises a spurious king in flash diamonds, and satin, and dazzling, as a compensation for the lack of true aristocratic elegance and taste, transplanted hither. Let us dance.

"There about, what about, and do just so." Every time you whirl about, jump Jim Crow."

"We command to the attention of every one of the piquant novelties of journalism, the New York World gives last Monday night in honor of Captain Commerell and his officers, by the naval authorities and residents of Ansonville. The reporter, not content with particularizing a dozen or more of the dredge's female crew in his own opinion of their personal charms, indicating each particular belle by name, and advertising the several objects of his regard in connection with whatever peculiar article of charm seems to recommend them, goes on to say, for example, that on that Miss Deville looked sweet sixteen from head to foot"; and that Mrs. McGuinnigan is a widow and much admired; that Miss Tuck is a pretty young girl; that Miss Lockwood is a belle with a short, but sweet, face; that Miss Lyon, whose name is short, is a most favorite belle; and that Miss Goss, excellent everywhere else in dancing; and that Miss overton, of Detroit, attracted much attention by her white shoulders."

Is the Senate of the United States on Monday last, the Vice-President announced the appointment of Senator Revels (black) to the Committee of Education and Labor. The Funding Bill was discussed to the hour of adjournment, Mr. Sherman making a speech, Mr. Davis gave notice that he would move to recommit the bill with instructions to the committee. In the House of Representatives, Butler, of Massachusetts, introduced a bill to provide for the enforcement of judgments in the law courts of the United States only. Mr. Palmer offered a preamble and resolution instructing the Committee on Banking and Currency to report a general law authorizing the establishment of national banks, unrestricted in aggregate number and aggregate circulation, fixed on such an issue of United States bonds as shall induce the lowest possible reduction of the rate of interest. The House refused to second the motion, and the resolution went over till next Monday. Mr. Spinck, of Dakota offered a resolution that "the interests of the country require such tariff as will afford incidental protection to domestic manufacturers, and as will, without impairing the revenue, relieve the least burden upon, and best promote and encourage the great industrial interests of the country." This resolution created a stir in the House. Mr. Wood moved to lay it on the table, but the motion was negatived. The resolution was adopted—yesterday 107, nays 48; a majority of the Democrats and a minority of the Republicans voting in the negative. The House then went into committee on the Indian Appropriation Bill. General Sheridan's strongly, was discussed with some bitterness, irrespective of party lines.

THE 60TH ROYAL RIFLES AT THE THEATRE.

The amateurs of the 60th Royal Rifles performed to-night in Her Majesty's Theatre. The pieces which they have selected are exceedingly interesting.—"The Midnight Watch," and "To Paris and back for £5." This, one of the most celebrated, among the many distinguished regiments of the British Army, contains at present many clever men even in its ranks, whose educational and historical acquirements are of no mean order. This is their first performance, here, under the patronage, too, of the ruler of the land, the Right Honourable Sir John Young, and with ability to please and distinguish patronage, a most agreeable evening may be expected. The splendid band of the regiment will fill the orchestra, and officers and men join in the attempt to please. By all means, then, let the gallant and admirably well-behaved 60th have a good house.

The Torontonians have a firm faith in their future, and the pot-utmost of their energies are bent on making and carrying the North to Western with One. Our boy just taken stock to the amount of $125,000 in the Toronto, Grey and Bruce. What that were here, and that is could somebody.

We see by the Dominion Gazette that application will be made to Parliament for an Act, to incorporate the Railway Company to construct a Railway from a point on the lake between Canada and the State of Maine as near Lake Megantic as the nature of the soil will admit, to the Grand Trunk Railway, at or near Sherbrooke, and to connect with the Canadian interest, and the European and North American Railway, or a branch thereof extending from its present terminus in Maine to the Province of Quebec. This is the road proposed to be carried through the Province of Quebec, and the distance from Montreal to the Lake Megantic will be about 100 miles. Mr. Wilmot, and the other gentlemen interested in the construction of the St. Maurice (or Flis) Railway have informed the Three Rivers Corporation that they cannot go on with the road unless they can get a charter from the Legislature, and still continue to sustain it. However, I predict a short career for any journal established on a foundation so base and corrupt.

So far Merrill & Co. have met with a certain disappointment. It was their expectation that the Government would have gone down on the Address; and they, doubtless, expected to be able to claim no small credit with the incoming Administration for having started a paper in their interest.

Having failed in the main object of their venture—the administration having withdrawn the shock—they now turn their attention to myself. In my humble opinion they might have been more employable; although, I am willing that the compensation should be made of my public acts, I do not think either my private affairs or those of Mr. Merrill are of any great interest to the public.

I trust that the testimonial presented to me a few days ago, created a paper in the camp of the Times—I mean to say, that the paper will be successful.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

Having failed in the main object of their venture—the administration having withdrawn the shock—they now turn their attention to myself. In my humble opinion they might have been more employable; although, I am willing that the compensation should be made of my public acts, I do not think either my private affairs or those of Mr. Merrill are of any great interest to the public.

I trust that the testimonial presented to me a few days ago, created a paper in the camp of the Times—I mean to say, that the paper will be successful.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.

The "unconscious" quick work was finished up by the sentence of the court to be hanged April 8, the day of Reynold's execution.

John Purcell, who killed William Kierans on the night of the 24th of May last, was tried in the Court of Sessions, and found guilty.