SUMMARY. AN UNJUSTIFIABLE ATTACK.

We notice that the Cornwall Frecholder, of Friday last, indulges in some very illnatured and utterly uncalled for remarks n reference to Lieut. Col. Chamberlin and the honours which have been paid to him by his fellow countrymen. Colonel Chamerlin's behaviour at Eccles Hill was worhas been recognized not only by his personal and political triends, but by those appearance of the crops through the part who have always been his political opponents. We regret that a brother elkor should have taken the opportunity of try ing to detract from the reputation which made the largest score ever recorded in Colonel Chamberlin has fairly won, and can only conclude that some feeling of personal spite must have induced this uncalled for attack Members of the Canadian press should rejoice at the fact that one their number, when suddenly called upon to exchange the pen for the sword, did his uty, and did it well.
