Pessibly since the Toronto Globe has been so close ly allied with the anti-British Halifax Chronicle it may be disposed to sneer at, or at all events to ignore, the sacrifices which were then made. We believe however the fact is that the Globe finds it can play the loyal role no longer. In conclusion it asks us three questions,

At what moment of time was it shown without an equivalent, was necessary to make or secure peace? When did the Americans refuse to send the Alabama claims to arbitration if the fisheries which our right was indisputable were not thrown into the bargain? When did John A.
