Sutherland's band was in attendance and played during the gymnastic performances, besides playing several very stirring selections.

Messrs, Ahearn and Phillion performed feats on the horizontal bar and trapeze, of a nature that we have seldom seen surpassed anywhere. They proved themselves no second rate gymnasts, but will be a favorable comparison with the best of their profession. We speak thus laudatory of them, not because they happen to be young gentlemen of this city, but in simple and just acknowledgement of their performances will exact praise.
