CASE OF MISTAKEN ISENTITY .- A CUPIOUS case was brought to light at the Stonehouse Board of Guardians' meeting on Thursday. A woman named Jane Chalk, applied to the Board to make them order her husband to maintain her. She has been married three years, twice since the disappearance of her first husband forty years ago; but both the subsequent husbands have died. In July last, she saw a man in Wolster Street, Plymouth, and declared him to be her first husband. She afterwards saw him in the house of a weman she knew, and whilst in conversation with him, she asked him if he had served in the Marines (from which corps her husband deserted forty years since), and he said he had, but denied ever having been a shoemaker (as the woman's first husband was by trade), stating he had been a clerk before enlistment. Her husband was born in Yorkshire, but the man denied being a native of that county. Her husband's name was Francis Cooton, but the man accused of bearing the relation to Chalk, appeared before the Board, having been summoned to appear to show cause why he should not III maintain his wife, and stated his name was George Murray. He was a native of stoard. He had lost his discharge paper. or expense. C. L. BOSSE, Montreal. He afterwards received a letter from Mrs. halk, in which he was called 'Dear Francis; it also stated that Mrs. Chalk knew he was her husband, for when she arst saw him a strange feeling passed over her. She said he had deserted her at Windsor when he deserted from the Marines. Having received the letter, he called on the woman, and seeing she was very poor gave her a shilling. He after wards received another letter, in which she asked him what he intended to do, and she aid she could swear to him in a thousand. Murray said Chalk told him her first husband worked for Mr. Harris, bootmaker, Stonehouse, who was still alive, but he called on Mr. Harris, who did not work for him. Chalk said her first husband told her before he deserted that he ray, who is evidently a person of good
