HONEST GEORGE AGAIN

The Globe is continually shovelling other people's corn into its own bushel and turn bling it out again with the assurance that it is just the right measure, neither more nor less. Hear it, yesterday, on the Ga sette-McMullen affair. It says: " taking " it for granted the Messrs. White were " not absolutely invulnerable (i. e. $50,000 " -not at present!) to the temptation to " tone their paper according to the weight " of material interest, one way or the "other (a payment for so many cords of firewood yet growing on the Bothwell Estate for instance) "this is a very easily com-" prehended transaction (to any one of Mr. George Brown's personal experience.) It " was perfectly natural (according to the policy of, and precedents established by the Globe) they should desire to stand well " with the Grand Trunk."

We have only to say that the paren theses in the above are all our own. The Globe can only be held accountable for giving the occasion. But those who know the career of that journal need nothing pore to satisfy them that it speaks by the was attempting to force his way into the
